Bonze AnneRose Blayk started to run into "serious problems in her life" subsequent to foiling the efforts of parties employed by IBM/ISSC to subvert systems security for the State of Michigan while she was employed by Millennium Computer Corporation...

AnneRose was the person who guaranteed that the implementation of DES, the Digital Encryption Standard, which was used to keep the passwords transmitted from the IBM/ISSC host computer in Boulder, Colorado, SECRET:

Compromising the DES standard by modifying just the one byte in the standard which the clown/traitor in Boulder wanted changed - "I could crack DES with a pocket calculator!" - would apparently have made it significantly easier to crack the codes and harvest passwords using a "known plaintext" attack...

I just happen to be aware - as a competent systems engineer - that if IBM and the NSA spent a couple of years wrangling over every tiny detail in the translation of IBM's "Lucifer" encryption system into a common standard usable in industry, that EVERY TINY DETAIL MATTERED.

"God is in the details." - Mies van der Rohe

PS: The power of a known-plaintext attack relies - naturally - on having strings of text embedded in an encrypted transmission that are known to the attacker before attempts are made to decrypt a message. This can be readily facilitated by having a "suit" (or "bureaucrat" in non-geek language) demand the insertion of a message declaring that DIRE CIRCUMSTANCES SHALL MEET THOSE WHO TRANSGRESS UPON THE SANCTITY OF THIS MESSAGE...

Great stunt, huh?

Michael Earl Saunders / for lack of a better place to post it -- i have a small shitload of daily newspaper clippings about the "housing crisis" in the area to stuff and mail sometime, all ranging frmo wtf to double wtf, the back to normal endless battles about "rentalcontrol" and zoning etc etc

but the overview macro-economic articles are elsewhere. i strung a whole bunch of them into a Vancouver friend's (one of many!) posts about their own 2 million metropolis's near-insane housing crisis -- but their post won't link since it's a nes paper ariticle, NOT a "photo" (with URL)

i belieev i may have already "exceptred" some of the salient points of the X-treme crazy area's housing crisis that i'm right in the middle of

"Assuming a steady growth path over that time period, the Bay Area would have created about 206,000 jobs and 136,000 housing units between January 2011 and now."

"In reality, the Bay Area created about 531,000 jobs but permitted only 94,000 housing units, said Lisa Vorderbrueggen, a spokeswoman for the building association. To make up for the deficit and keep pace with the new workers, she figures the Bay Area needs to permit "considerably more than 27,000 per year." Something on the order of 40,000 units per year."

San Francisco housing shortage - Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Starting in the 1990s, the city of San Francisco, California and the surrounding San Francisco Bay Area have faced a serious housing shortage. As of October 2015, San Francisco has had the highest rents of any major US city.[1] The nearby city of San Jose, California had the fourth highest rents, an...

"This is where all the tech jobs are. And it's pushing out your community helpers," she said. "The cost of living just keeps going up and up."

The Cities Where A Six-Figure Income Is Barely Enough To Get By

six figure bla bla bla. until my $320/mo $4k/year pension kicks in (in fixed dollars same as 1992 as the giant merger ripoff when the Sisters of Providence Health Care System flushed Providence's pension liability down the rathole...about $30million got nuked, when i posted the entry adjusted "present value" back into civil war dollars for the corporate office up in seattle.

so until next may 1st -- my AGI is $19,000. (1580./mo social security). and yes the line of people who would gladly kill me in order to get a 1080/mo mortgage plus as $5500/year property tax bill...oh jezz, it's endless.

since my future 23,000/year doesn't make fifty cents of a dent in the property tax payment yearly -- it will take about 2% (rounding up) interest income (all of it non taxable at ground zero starting at this opnit) on my IRA/s to cover the property taxes. and JUNE 30THJ bi=yearly TIPS interest income -- right on target, about $2,700 on my YTD after TIPS paid their first of two yearly payments, the june 15th.

"but how do you get by with a car that is 27 year years old?" easy. one tank of gas a month, on average. not quite 4,500 miles driven in the alst 2,400 months. EVERYTHIG i need is right here, or within max of 20 miles (places i have to dig through once a year north and south). well, 40 miles each way for san jose campbell rasputin's 8,000 50-cent lps (i brought home a tidy 125 of them almost 80 or 90 of them for me).

getting the home loan approved (by fannie mae) required legal smoke-and-mirrors... three monthly withdrawals from my IRA (per instructions) of 2,000/mo, to make it look like i had 24k year of additional income, above and beyond the tax returns' mid-20's of AGI since age 62 in 2014 (counting unusually high Sch E adn SChC music income, at that). i was in texas (day 2 of the december trip) when everything went thorough.

weirdo outdoor gig (12 consecutive bands each day, between the two stages stradling each other's starting time back/forth) in a real ampitheatre (and massive PA brought in). like a giant backyard party (over 1,5000 people spilling way up into the "woods" beneath endless giant trees past the last rows of the concrete s=greekian seats.

, when we played a 3:30pm 40 nminutes set, for a dinky $2,700 dollars not pesos. (being a garage-rock oriented festival NOT punk, there was exactly one of their favorite punk rock bands each day)and ye the Mummies "headlined" on the day we layed, although all billings were arbitrary. being more of an "event" neat-park tons-of-trees and shade, gathering, rather than band-specific or genre-specific. (ten years ago, it was sputtering around from club to club as a Budget Rock all-week festival until the promoter stumbled upon the giatn park that's just on the other side of the 580 freeway from whre i worked those 14 years in oakland).

Michael Earl Saunders, I was in Economics and absolutely NONE of the failures of development in "underbuilt suburbs" will constitute "news to me," OK? I understand your predicament, and hope you can manage it so it works out alright...

Meanwhile over here, I'm being subjected to social ostracism because, because, ahhh... "these people" (the ScumLords of the local music scene, you know, "critics" and the like) are morons and believe anything they see that has an OFFICIAL MENTAL HEALTH RECORD stamp on it?

So my efforts to help prevent other poor souls from accidentally getting fucked over by an adverse drug reaction to Trazodone is for nought: "Surely the REAL experts would have caught this! AnneRose is a FRAUD, and is just making excuses for being a violent criminal!"

---> Noam Chomsky was right: college education in the modern era is more about indoctrination than education.

"Dysthacans believe in PreCrime" - TRUE - Screen Shot 2016-07-13 at 6.17.02 AM

... just how Americans came to believe that Preventive Detention for those diagnosed with "mental illness" is a great idea, well,

---> BigPharma / State Psychiatry PROPAGANDA

Every time some whack-job obtains a firearm and goes ballistic on a bunch of people, it gets splattered all over the headlines, even though the experts on spree killings advise the media NOT to do that - PUBLICITY is the primary motivation for spree killers, and the annual death toll due to spree killings is about equivalent to that caused by [lightning strikes] etc. The people who become hysterical over the risks of such an event should be avoiding air travel "if they were rational about risk calculation _ceteris paribus_" - but spreading "The fear of fear itself" is a primary tool employed by The Powers That Be to keep people in line.

--- I guess Charles Whitman '65 in the UT Library Tower inoculated those of us who attended the University of Texas against the (very very low) risk that somebody was going to try that stunt again... the Tower was still open at the top when I was first attending UT Austin in 1974, but they closed off access to the observation deck soon after because

"Jumpers"

And that's Bad Publicity, right? Cornell Inc. has made it clear they want jumpers to go jump off somebody else's bridges, "there are plenty of gorges to jump into around here, stay away from ours because we don't want to be sued by some dumbass parent who thinks an average suicide ratio for a Top Ten university is evidence CORNELL IS EVIL AND MUST PAY PAY PAY because your kid made a very bad decision!" - yeah, some guy did this. (His kid was "perfect" unlike everybody else's, because he's already loaded.)

OK, for the "sick joke" that necessarily attends such a discussion, "Brother Mel" - the guy who had the room next door to me in Jester Center 1243, and actually managed to LOSE money dealing pot? - he came up with The Winner - it's a cartoon, OK?

There's the Tower in the background, and a jumper SPLAT on the pavement, and there are the judges in the foreground holding up the signs:

- '9'
- '7'
- '8'
- '9'
- '10'

Funny, eh? 😊

"there was one HOG HAT right down up front"

I should start wearing the Hog Hat while ambling about town, in order to establish that I am really, really nuts! "Then maybe someone will call the Men in White Coats and get this lunatic some help!"

LOL - "Crazy like William Jefferson Clinton, YEAH BABY!"

(the song title would be "Gimme Some Hog Head" or "Gimme Some Head, Hog" or something similar - you should take ten minutes sometime and crank it out! - LOL)

David Roth · for the DES-related content posted above:

Yes, the people who were frustrated in their attempt to undermine the systems security of the State of Michigan were very, very upset with me, and yes, they have connections to a surviving faction of NSDAP supporters, racists and genocidaires within IBM, and yes, ultimately... they're lurking behind ALL of my poisonings, from the Prozac/Trazodone Adverse Drug Reaction of 1997 to the PCP poisonings in 2002 and 2003, and more recently the Adderall poisonings of Oct. 2004 and March 2015.

Horrific, eh? Indeed.

thanks,

PS: And just to underscore the notion - apparently ridiculous to some locals who don't seem to get that "some competent systems programmers appear to be totally off the wall" - I've updated the BADTRIPRECORDS webpages with some background information on just how methodically I was kicking ass in the 20-year development span of COMET, to the point where prior to the PCP poisoning of 2003 I was set to be moving into the $100,000/year income range from sales of dataComet-Secure.
