* "On the morning of 2/6/97, Mr. Saunders drove to the trailer park where his estranged ex- girlfriend had been living." - Khan MD 2007-09-10

(Regarding my "confession" and the false claim that I was "responding to auditory command hallucinations" at the time of the arson which appears in most of the psychiatric reports: Note that I stated clearly at the time I made my verbal statement after my arrest that "I was hearing voices over the radio, and I thought that I was supposed to quote kidnap endquote Susan". I succeeded in adding those quotation marks around a later occurrence of the word "kidnap" in one occurrence of the word in my "statement": this was a play-act intended to deceive "Hannibal Lecter".

Moreover, Susan Hamann was not "my estranged girlfriend" as stated in my "confession": she had visited me at my home (with David Fogel) eight days before the arson out of concern for my health, a fact which I have never previously stated. Here's a plausibility check regarding this "confession": where, outside of legal/police circles and TV shows, would anyone employ the phrase "my estranged girlfriend"? The truth is that Susan has never said to me that our relationship is over. In fact, to my amazement, she continued to express an interest in a romantic relationship with me even after the arson in a number of phone calls she made to me from after the Order of Protection expired in June 1997 up until January 1998.)

“Q Now you don't accept the diagnosis of borderline personality disorder [sic: NEEDS CAPS: “Borderline Personality Disorder”] with narcissistic features?

A That's not what the diagnosis is. It's personality disorder not otherwise specified [sic: ditto] . In fact, I believe first off as I noted I do not qualify for the borderline personality disorder [sic: ditto] diagnosis. I think that the not otherwise specified diagnosis [sic: ditto] with borderline features is reasonable.

Q Borderline personality disorder [sic: ditto] with narcissistic features, right?

A Yes.

Q You don't like to think of yourself as narcissistic?

A I think the only feature there which applies which is in the DSM is grandiosity. I'm mildly grandiose, and I am aware of that. But...

“Testing at that time indicated a personality structure that was extremely narcissistic and at times he is minimally constrained by objective reality. He uses rationalization as a major defense. He is self deceptive and facile, and devises multiple reasons to justify his inconsiderate behaviors. This patient will try to place himself in the best possible light despite evident shortcomings and failures. His Rorschach clearly indicated his impulse control was extremely poor, very self centered and manipulative. His Rorschach also indicated that he was sexually fixated. This patient has the capacity to be extremely exploitive of others. He has a very high sense of self worth despite being seen by others around him as being egotistical, inconsiderate and arrogant.”

BLUNT EPILEPTOLOGY - “YOUR POT IS NOT” (medicinal)

IS SMOKING CANNABIS GOOD FOR EPILEPSY? No.

In addition, he has been referred to two specialists: Dr. Jodi Stackman, a neurologist in Ithaca, and Dr. Tawil, a neurologist sub-specializing in neuromuscular disorders, at the University of Rochester. Examinations by every physician involved have indicated no neurologic deficits whatsoever and a normal neurologic exam, even in the midst of complaints of symptoms. In addition, Mr. Saunders has had routine laboratory studies, advanced laboratory studies, nerve-conduction velocity tests, X-rays and MRI's of his brain, which have all been within normal limits. As a part of his examination while on the inpatient unit at the RRFU, he had a routine EEG, which showed mildly slowing in one temporal region upon sleep. This was followed-up with a 72- hour video monitored EEG at the University of Rochester's Comprehensive Epilepsy Program. Results of this were reviewed with the entire neurology team. It was noted that Mr. Saunders indicated through several episodes that he was having neurologic symptoms. Despite this his EEG was perfectly normal and there was no clinical evidence of any abnormal seizure-like movements or other brain dysfunction. The conclusion of the neurologic team at the University of Rochester was that Mr. Saunders has absolutely no neurologic deficits. He does not suffer from CIDP or from temporal lobe epilepsy. In addition, they felt that the use of marijuana was neither an immuno suppressant sufficient to treat CIDP nor was it an anticonvulsant sufficient to treat temporal lobe epilepsy. Further, they stated that is no laboratory testing such as what Mr. Saunders is requesting in terms of blood work that would either prove or disprove his claims of having an autoimmune disorder. Their conclusion was that given all the testing and examinations there is simply no evidence of any neurologic dysfunction in Mr. '. Saunders. - 1998-03-19 John Kennedy p. 14

cf. "absolutely no neurologic deficits" with the opinion of the speech therapy at IC who thought my speech patterns evidenced "a well-controlled speech impediment characteristic of left temporal lobe damage, which is probably also reflected in your sexuality." - Psychiatrists regularly commented on my adding "um" to the end of my sentences, sometimes as an "affectation," but could not bring themselves to the obvious conclusion - supported by Dick Cogger's observation that I when starting work at Cornell I initially had a stutter that cleared up over time? - that I OBVIOUSLY HAVE A SPEECH IMPEDIMENT. I am currently suffering when emotionally overwrought from speech aphasia, I believe linked to my post-Lyme disorder (I expect this to improve). - AnneRose Blayk - June 4, 2018

“Personalities are like impressionistic paintings. At a distance, each person is ‘all of a piece’; up close, each is a bewildering complexity of moods, cognitions, and motives.” - Theodore Millon, Personality Disorders in Modern Life

“The Self-Other Polarity - Although organisms/personalities may be well-adapted to their environments, the existence of all life-forms is time-limited. Therefore, they develop a replication aim, that is, a way in which to leave progeny (in organisms) or place their interpersonal interest (in personalities). These strategies reflect what biologists have referred to as r- or self-propagating strategy, at one polar extreme, and K- or other-nurturing strategy, at the other extreme. Psychologically, the former strategy is disposed toward actions which maximize self-reproduction; here, organisms are egotistic, insensitive, inconsiderate, and socially uncaring; while the latter strategy is disposed toward protecting and sustaining kin or progeny; this leads to actions which are socially affiliative, intimate, caring, and solicitous.” - <http://www.millonpersonality.com/theory/core-components/>

The Prozac Defense Cont.: "You're a narcissistic fantasy-hero!"

"Many narcissists make the past and present much more hostile to their ambitions than it really was or is. In so doing, the individual feeling and experiencing personal failures has a means of deflecting personal responsibility. They may contemptuously assert, for example, that years of their life have been lost to the ignorance of others, who failed to recognize the true merits of their ideas or achievements or inadvertently stood in their way out of narrow-minded conventionalism or lack of courage to change." - Personality Disorders in Modern Life - SECOND EDITION - THEODORE MILLON and Seth Grossman Carrie Millon Sarah Meagher Rowena Ramnath

"Narcissists, however, are above convention: It is only others who must live by rules and subordinate themselves meekly to standards." - WE MAKE THE STANDARDS HERE YO' BETTAH LISSEN UP! - Personality Disorders in Modern Life

"Loquacious and opinionated, Dr. Millon, who described himself as an exemplar of 'secure narcissism,' became a kind of institution unto himself after laying a foundation for the study of personality disorders." - New York Times obituary - THE PLURIPOTENT NARCISSIST IS ATTRACTED TO THE PROFESSION OF CLINICAL PSYCHOLOGY FOR THE SAKE OF "PROMOTING A HEALTHY SOCIETY BY HELPING OTHERS" BWAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA! -

In one of his books, an encyclopedia of behavioral scientists called "Masters of the Mind" (2004), he included an entry for "Theodore Millon (1928 - )." Dr. Millon, he wrote of himself, was distinguished from many others in the book "by the fact that he appears, contrawise, to be invariably buoyant, if not jovial. Critics are not invariably enamored, however, finding his work to be, at times, too speculative, his writing unduly imaginative, and his creativity overly expansive." - By BENEDICT CAREYJAN. JAN 31, 2014 - <https://www.nytimes.com/2014/02/01/us/theodore-millon-a-student-of-personality-dies-at-85.html>

"Although he apparently enjoyed a period of stability between 1997 and 2002, his two recent psychotic episodes appear to mark an end to such stability. Of particular concern is the fact that defendant's relapses were rather sudden and apparently triggered by the kinds of stress that could occur at any time." - "In 1997, defendant presented with pressured speech and paranoid thinking.... Dr. Povinelli concluded that defendant still had some residual psychosis. Defendant stated that he was still receiving messages through the radio but attributed all of his symptoms to a drug disorder." - "He also asserted the possibility that this psychotic episode [January 1997] was caused by a reaction to medicine." - 2003-05-22 - Judge Rowley - Order of Recommitment.pdf

THE reason for the all-too-typical insistence that an insanity plea under M'Naghten based on a delusional disorder must be a fraud, a cover-up: "If Kevin Eric Saunders a/k/a bonze blayk burned down a trailer with the best of intentions, is it possible that the things I myself do with the best of intentions are equally destructive?"

At the age of 17, he met Jodi Hochberg while in a summer program at Cornell before attending college. Mr. Saunders developed an intense attachment to Ms. Hochberg, which he reported as being nonsexual. Mr. Saunders stated that they ended up going to different colleges and through correspondence he found out that she had lied to him, was interested in another man, and broke up with him. He stated "I had my heart broken, it was awful, and I started contemplating suicide after that. It was terribly sad that life can have such pain." He reported dreaming about her every night for years, "I was plagued by dreams that I was near Jodi, but I couldn't see her or talk to her. For example, I was in a van and Jodi was rolled up in a blanket and I wanted to talk to her but I couldn't. It was awful." When asked to explain why Jodi lied to him, Mr. Saunders stated, "she liked my adulation and praise. "

MCMI-III Qualification Levels

QUALIFICATION LEVEL C:

Tests with a C qualification require a high level of expertise in test interpretation, and can be purchased by individuals with:

- A doctorate degree in psychology, education, or closely related field with formal training in the ethical administration, scoring, and interpretation of clinical assessments related to the intended use of the assessment.
- OR
- Licensure or certification to practice in your state in a field related to the purchase.
- OR
- Certification by or full active membership in a professional organization (such as APA, NASP, NAN, INS) that requires training and experience in the relevant area of assessment.

autobiographies are “problematic”
because as Psychology trains its adepts:
“Everybody but us is delusional!”

“Adler illuminates both why some people fought Bailey so hard and why any scientific account of transsexuality may ultimately deny many trans people psychological relief that their own coherent autobiographies can provide—however factually problematic these autobiographies, like all autobiographies, are. Adler thus hints that, from a clinical psychological standpoint, Blanchard’s theory could sometimes result in a case of ‘the surgery was successful but the patient died.’” - from Dreger and responses.pdf (2008) - Alice Dreger citing Jonathan Adler on paradigmatic vs. narrative modes of explanation, which appears to reduce to object vs. subject and “efficient vs. teleological” causes (HOW TOTALLY NOVEL :-/ and note widespread mal-interpretation of Stanley Libet’s work regarding the role of conscious reflection modulating pre-existing motor impulses later experienced as “purposive” action) - and what about survival motives as opposed to this “identity” bullshit? - the “what” vs. “who” I am is not part of “narrative reasoning”? Where is the historical sensibility in this? This perspective reduces all narratives to explanations for one’s mythos-motivated “Hero System!”

“Bruner (1986) wrote about two modes of thought humans use in interpreting and understanding the world and their experiences. He wrote:

...one mode, the paradigmatic or logico-scientific one, attempts to fulfill the ideal of a formal, mathematical system of description and explanation. It employs categorization or conceptualization and the operations by which categories are established, instantiated, idealized, and related to one another to form a system. (p. 12, emphasis added)

The paradigmatic mode is the mode of science and is concerned with logically categorizing the world. The other mode, which Bruner called the narrative mode, is concerned with the meaning that is ascribed to experiences through stories. Bruner (1986) explains that these stories are about ‘human or humanlike intention and action and the vicissitudes and consequences that mark their course’ (p. 13). They capture people’s own explanations about what they want and how they go about achieving it.”

“Which cultural script is the best to adapt for one’s own narrative identity is an incredibly important question; it determines who you believe you are. [NOT “what”?] But it is a question firmly grounded in the narrative mode, not in the paradigmatic mode. The merits of a given self-narrative cannot be judged on their ability to generalize and categorize. The primary psychological way to assess the value of one's narrative identity is from within a narrative framework: Does the narrative effectively capture your perspective on [NOT "history of"!] your shifting intentions and actions?" - WTF - This "paradigmatic vs. narrative" antimony reminds me of C.P. ## the cult of psychiatry - "YOUR RECORDS ARE PSYCHOTIC!"

"Jaspers set down his views on mental illness in a book which he published in 1913, General Psychopathology.<sup>[1]</sup> This work has become a classic in the psychiatric literature and many modern diagnostic criteria stem from ideas found within it. One of Jaspers's central tenets was that psychiatrists should diagnose symptoms of mental illness (particularly of psychosis) by their form rather than by their content. For example, in diagnosing a hallucination, it is more important to note that a person experiences visual phenomena when no sensory stimuli account for them, than to note what the patient sees. What the patient sees is the "content", but the discrepancy between visual perception and objective reality is the "form".<sup>[citation needed]</sup>" - Wikipedia on Karl Jaspers, psychiatrist and Phenomenologist

The focus of clinicians on form, as opposed to CONTENT, leads them to presume "delusions" where supportable or even provable assertions exist; "that never happens" is applied to real-world instances which are merely unlikely, e.g. "I was set up for a DWI." They rarely or NEVER inquire as to "circumstantial" details - clearly this would interfere with the orderly completion of their rounds in a "timely manner!" - LOL - Thus "common delusions" become a stalking horse for real-world special operations (cf. Zersetzungen)

form = (shambolic content)  $\neq$  \ actual content \ symbolic content \ *general meaning

==> structured inattention to *contingency

"They planned for every contingency - except the lack of a contingent!"

====> focus on "form" rather than "symbolic content"

"In the DSM-II,<sup>41</sup> psychosis is defined as a mental disorder in which mental functioning is impaired to the degree that it interferes with patient's ability to meet the ordinary demands of life and recognize reality. Hallucinations and delusions may distort perceptions; alterations of mood may affect the capacity to respond appropriately; and deficits in perception, language, and memory may interfere with grasping situations effectively." - MCMI-III - Evolution of diagnostic criteria in psychoses - A. Ban Thomas - Dialogues in

Clinicians suffer from deficits in depth of perception and breadth of language comprehension, buttressed by “false memory” enshrined in faked histories which leave them effectively delusional and PSYCHOTIC IN PRACTICE.

“In DSM-III,42 the term psychotic is used to describe a patient at a given time, or a mental disorder in which at some time during its course all patients with the disorder evaluate incorrectly the accuracy of their perceptions and thoughts, and make incorrect inferences about external reality, even in the face of contrary evidence. However, the term psychotic does not apply to minor distortions of reality that involve matters of relative judgment, but gross impairment of reality testing and the creation of new reality. Thus, a depressed person who underestimates his/her achievements would not qualify as psychotic, whereas one who believes he/she caused a natural catastrophe would qualify. Direct evidence of psychotic behavior is the presence of either delusions or hallucinations without insight into their pathological nature and/or grossly disorganized behavior from which a reasonable inference can be made that reality testing is markedly disturbed.”

Clinicians are for the most part of the “Cargo Cult” mentality where technology is concerned, and have no clue as to how the components of an advanced technological civilization interact; hence they are prone to overdiagnosis of “delusions” where it is in fact possible if not likely that advanced technology has been put to use in Zersetzung operations.

“Similar to ICD-10,39 in the DSM-IV,44 which was published in 1994, the diagnosis of psychosis is no longer based on the severity of the functional impairment, ie, on gross interference with the capacity to meet ordinary demands of life, but on the presence of certain symptoms. Included among these symptoms are delusions and hallucinations (with the hallucinations occurring in the absence of insight into their pathological nature), prominent hallucinations (perceived by the patient as hallucinatory experiences), and some other positive symptoms, such as disorganized speech and grossly disorganized or catatonic behavior.” - An invitation to overdiagnosis

“[Over time] the diagnostic criteria for psychosis shifted from the severity of the clinical manifestations and the degree of impairment in social functioning to the presence of one or more symptoms in a set of psychopathological symptoms, which include hallucinations, formal thought disorder manifest in disorganized or odd speech, delusions, flat/inappropriate affect, avolition/apathy disorganized behavior, catatonic motor behavior, and depersonalization/derealization."

"In current diagnostic manuals, psychotic behavior is detected by the presence of one or more of the following psychopathological symptoms: hallucinations, formal thought disorder (disorganized or odd speech), delusions (including disturbances of ego integrity, such as thought insertion, thought withdrawal, or feelings of being controlled), disturbances of affect (flat/inappropriate), avolition/apathy, alogia, disorganized behavior, catatonic motor behavior, and depersonalization/derealization. Since the disorders that qualify for psychosis, and in which psychotic behavior may be displayed, are [sic] differentiated from each other by operationalized diagnostic criteria, which may or may not be based on the symptoms that signal psychosis, psychotic behavior is today perceived as a symptom of many psychiatric disorders.<sup>51</sup>"

MCMI-III CRITERIA FOR DIAGNOSIS OF NARCISSISM

an invaluable tool for interpersonal exploitation!

- 1) MCMI-III invariably detects "narcissism" in successful, sociable persons;
- 2) Manumission from this diagnosis is based solely on the judgment of the clinician;
- 3) Dishonest clinicians can exploit "Impostor Syndrome" in competent individuals by denigrating their accomplishments as "insignificant":

MUST COPY: p. 63, amazing Belsare "borderline narcissistic features" comment: "injured ego ... compensates for by valuing their own performance as being extraordinary or greater, or themselves as being more important than they are in society." - 2003-07-01 AnneRose Blayk f-k-a Kevin Eric Saunders Notes on Transcripts of Court Proceedings - Originals STOLEN while at EPC - COIN-OP EPC Tara Belsare OCR.pdf

"He tends to confidently exhibit himself and acts in a very self assured manner in displaying what he thinks are his achievements." - 1997-06-14 Paul Thaddeus Povinelli PhD.pdf

- 4) INDUCED SHAME and "submissive transference" with clinician as the "defective child": "Yes, I guess I really am a narcissist." [hangs head]
- 5) Millon's Narcissism ==> Terminal Dunning-Kruger Syndrome: you will never know better: the only time your head is not firmly stuffed up your ass is when you're lying!

MCMI-III

An attribution of Millon's Narcissism (or Borderline?) tidily resolves all questions regarding Truth Statements made by a person so diagnosed. This diagnosis allows one to avoid evaluation of the real-world content of such claims, which might require an interminable foray into what we might term "The Entscheidungsproblem in Real Life" - where formal mathematical systems regularly meet with failure in assessing whether a logical proposition is 'decidable' as True or False, and worse, realworld assessments of Truth require troublesome footwork and poring over conflicting data such as confused or untrustworthy informants - and instead enable the presumption:

Susan K. Hamann is the Alucard (MPD much? LOL!) to my Seras: I kind of volunteered to be drafted into the cause? Kind of.

There's a story related in Herodotus' Persian Wars about a siege of Babylon (which was located, by the way, in Central Iraq) conducted some centuries before the birth of Jesus.

The besiegers of Babylon were shocked when one of the Babylonian nobility arrived with his nose and ears cut off. He swore that he would lead the besiegers against his former rulers in order to attain vengeance. After several successful small attacks, he gained their confidence, and was allowed to command a full-scale assault-which resulted in the slaughter of the attacking force, when he led them into the trap that had been arranged before this noble himself had conceived the plan and insisted on doing the job himself.

Now isn't that subtle? And that was 2000 years ago!

"There is a connection, but the easy thing to do here is to overlook the complexity." Frank Black - Episode 3 of Millennium - "The Judge"

"Military pilots, almost to a man, perceived psychiatry as a pseudo-science. They regarded the military psychiatrist as the modern and unusually bat-brained version of the chaplain. But the shrink could be dealt with. You just turned on the charm - lit up the halo of the right stuff - and did some prudent lying." - Tom Wolfe - The Right Stuff, p. 97.

FALSE CONSCIOUSNESS IN PSYCHOLOGY

I was sitting outside an auto repair shop, waiting in my Volvo for my friend Mia to complete her business there, when the thought occurred to me: the fundamental error in the practice of psychology is the same as the belief in dialectical materialism expressed by Leo Strauss in his work Natural Right and History:

In the claim that he had analyzed the processes of history and discerned the processes of dialectical materialism, where thesis and antithesis interact in order to inexorably produce a synthesis, Marx had situated himself outside of history. Similarly, when scholars and practitioners of psychology pose themselves outside of and superior to the processes of "ordinary" perception and cognition as "rational, detached observers" of another person's functioning, they engage in the same error...

All these guys are Hannibal Lecter wannabes, only they fancy themselves as being really nice people who just want to fix you. Their perceptions of your "history" based on a "quick read" ("first impressions formed in 100ms") will govern their responses.

NB: Analysts are warned against processes of counter-transference, but insofar as they expect transference - the identification of the analyst as a person invested with parental authority - from a mature individual, they will fail; and can they identify what a mature individual is supposed to look like?

They fail, routinely, at this task: Why can you not be abnormal like me!

"As males are the stereotypical antisocial personality, females are that of the histrionic personality. In many ways, Yvonne seems to epitomize this female stereotype. Her tendency to hyperemotionalize overshadows her rationale as she exhibits an ever-changing stream of consciousness and its respective, uncensored emotional expressions (see criterion 3). Her emotional life has the trappings of depth and seems vividly alive but, on deeper inspection, lacks authenticity." - p. 293, MCMI-III - Personality Disorders in Modern Life SECOND EDITION - THEODORE MILLON -

OBTAIN THE “HEARING” MINUTES!

Richard Wenig to Povinelli in the court of Judge Hayden:

Q. Doctor, have you had a chance to read a report presented to the District Attorney for Tompkins County

2 in a letter dated April 7th, 2003? Those are the

3 minutes from the, quote, unquote, hearing you have

4 mentioned a few minutes ago.

A: I haven't read the minutes of it, no.

2002-06-28 HuckFinn.txt - Preamble - 567,210 bytes (573 KB on disk) - IND$FILE IBM

“The last Nazi died in the bunker?” - No.

World War II was the biggest smash-and-grab in history!

It's amusing in a way, I've got severe writer's block on the OMH-related stuff - since I hit what I will refer to as "The Horror" hereinafter, the psychological test that automatically tags highly competent individuals as Narcissists? - but I'm still working it elsewhere, thinking about the way the contractual relationships between me (as Secretary), DATABEAST, and QUVUS C&M [hereinafter 'QCM'] need to be structured to place the presentations under a (weak but absolutely necessary) seal of confidential corporate communications...

I found a template for an "Exclusive Agent Booking Contract" for bARB to QUVUS C&M which I can hack around to the requirements

- 1) All payments from clients, including unsolicited cash benefactions made directly to me, have to be filtered through DATABEAST,
- 2) Payments for presentation site rentals probably should be made through DATABEAST, in part because of it should limit liability as a corporate activity if you're acting as Treasurer, not hard to arrange if you're using a credit or debit card made out to DATABEAST - although there should be a record created (an email) between

WHY I REJECTED THE "ECONOMICAL" WORLDVIEW IN 1979 and suffered having my entire Libertarian "beautiful model" of political and social life EXPLODED ... my ideological viewpoint was blown apart by exposure to Economics at Cornell: quite apart from finding the intense math overly demanding and ultimately sterile, I came to see that the focus on utility as a single measure for assessing a "goods space" was inadequate, that *bad*s have an entirely different character that cannot be assessed simply by saying that something is "less good" than another alternative - that the nature of PAIN cannot be shoehorned into this model. Ever.

- "Limitations of Drug Tests for PCP

Results for tests of PCP are frequently specific and indicative of use. Few confounding test results are seen. However, the frequency of use may complicate test results for those who have only a single use. Some users may metabolize PCP quickly and will not test for presence within as short a period as 72 hours. Due to the side effects produced by PCP, these users may run the risk of being diagnosed with mental illness, such as schizophrenia or dissociative disorders if no remainder of the drug can be detected." - <https://www.thegooddrugsguide.com/pcp/drugtests.htm>

• “I thought I told you that pot smelled funny!” - Alice Richardson 2010

- Alice Richardson threw out the marijuana I had been smoking in April 2002 prior to becoming physically ill and somewhat loopy after I had specifically noted - to her and to a police officer who interviewed me at the hospital - that I thought it was suspect and wanted it tested?
- Alice Richardson procured the marijuana I was smoking a few days prior to my hospitalization on April 4, 2003, which I specifically requested be of lower-potency “commercial” grade rather than stronger pot which she was buying.
- Beneath a veil of eccentricity linked to physical disability, Alice H. Richardson LPN is insane!
