Pretty much awesomely 100% correct, in this case: Trazodone produces mCPP as a primary byproduct, and mCPP is an hallucinogen.

Just this morning I came across this web page for a GC/MS drug test for mCPP:

Category	Hallucinogen

I've appended an email that I worked on some after talking with Richard earlier this month, but had not sent out yet, regarding this issue...

Hi!

Thanks, Richard, for chatting with me yesterday... as I said, I believe that the clinicians (and even moreso, the DFS) is in the grip of "insanity" when they repeatedly describe me as an extremely violent person...

where's the history? Oh, they latched on to an invented one!

The ultimate madness? I went over the EPC core history, which is not quite as howlingly bad (i.e., counterfactual in bizarre ways) as the one prepared at the RRFU in 1998... but... what can I say here?

That's the ONLY serious incident in my history.

The Official Story now in my case, as of the time Dr. Khan wrote his report supporting my release from the hospital, has been mangled into conformity with what appears to be the Standard Narrative: patient stops taking psychiatric drugs; patient drinks and smokes pot; patient goes nuts.

This is wholly false, but it doesn't seem to matter. ??? Three weeks prior to burning down the trailer, I was in a serious state of freaking out as a result of taking psychiatric medications, and nothing but psychiatric medications: I was under the influence of an hallucinogen: mCPP, to which I was exposed as a result of taking Trazodone as prescribed. And when I burned down the trailer, I was taking Prozac (and Vistaril PRN) as prescribed.

I documented the history of my symptoms as they developed over Jan-Feb 1997 in April 1997, and repeatedly provided that document to doctors, to the court, to the OMH... "Symptoms-1.txt" is now up on the Bad Trip Records website ("are we feeling irony yet?" ;-), but I haven't made it publicly available. Yet.

However, in that document, my description of my symptoms nails the physical and mental symptoms I experienced over those weeks in early January 1997 as being side effects caused by Prozac, Trazodone... and mCPP (regarding mCPP in particular, the extreme anorexia I describe helps establish that I was suffering the effects of exposure to mCPP, a "potent anorectic").

Oneiroid states (dreamlike but lucid waking states) as I lay semi-paralytic, practically helpless, and amotivational in my
bed. [3]

[NOTE: my recovered web logs show this occurred before 1/11/97]

[3]

In these states I experienced a horrifying confrontation with my anima in a deSadean waking nightmare (as you might expect,
I projected my anima onto my girlfriend: it took me a week to grasp that this was projection, that I experienced my anima).

Is mCPP a hallucinogen?

Yes. It's a fact. A WELL-KNOWN FACT.

mCPP is not just a widely-used "drug of abuse"; it's widely regarded as a SHIT DRUG (a crappy substitute of Ecstasy/MDMA). Oh God, is mCPP a shit drug!

I find it difficult to understand why nothing's being done about this. Last time I saw Dr. Breiman (my GP), I requested that he submit an Adverse Drug Reaction report through the FDA's MedWatch, and gave him a copy of my ADR report...

Dear Kevin,

Well, I predicted that arranging for travel out of New York State would prove to be problematic... here's a letter from the Acting Clinical Director of the GBHC that I received today. I'm perplexed, but not surprised by the details requested: what difference could the exact dates of departure and arrival make? If I'm fit to travel, surely the details are irrelevant, as long as I hold to the range of dates I provided (around 11/20-11/30 if I recall correctly).

I placed a request for permission to travel to Little Rock over Thanksgiving with my 22 year old daughter, Rachel Anne Whelan, to visit with her grandmother, Jean Saunders, with Dr. Bezirgianian back in late May or June, because I knew there would be a long lead time involved in approving the request. Naturally I haven't made arrangements for the trip yet, because I wouldn't want to pay cancellation fees in the event it was not approved; the dates are imprecise because the trip is scheduled around the holiday, and Rachel does not yet know how much time will be available over her Thanksgiving vacation (she's a senior at the New School down in the City). Also, we would want to get the cheapest air fare possible, which requires that we remain flexible up until the time the trip is approved and we can actually purchase the tickets.

Also, it's worth noting that this trip to is being underwritten by Anne Marie Whelan, my former wife, so that Rachel can visit with her grandmother, whom she has not seen for 7 years. My 87 year old mother is no longer capable of traveling because she's now suffering from a serious loss of vision due to macular degeneration.

thanks,
Kevin Eric Saunders a/k/a bonze blayk

PS: You may recall that when you raised the issue of travel outside New York in my Order of Conditions, Judge Rowley promised that he would be helpful if unnecessary obstacles were placed in the way of travel--not that I think that resorting to an appeal the Judge Rowley is necessary at this time.

Hi!

I thought I should apprise you (i.e. "brag"?) of my latest performance enterprise:

Last Wednesday I sang karaoke for the first time ever outside the walls of Elmira Psychiatric Center - at a birthday event held for an acquaintance here in Ithaca, Herman Nugent, who is a great singer. Since I haven't been going to the karaoke night at The Haunt, Herman was the only person I knew who was there! (... outside of the owner & staff, who are quite familiar with me from my showing up regularly for performances by rock bands and doing videos for them. NB: "Rock bands" -> "Not a gay club" .-)

As I told Dr. Zager over a year and a half ago... there's no way I'm going to be able to "go stealth" as a transsexual: I intend to sing, and there's absolutely no way my voice could ever sound feminine while singing... and dang since quitting tobacco? Even though my high range has improved dramatically... overall my voice has gotten deeper!

I've uploaded the video I produced of my performance of Soundgarden's hit rock song "Black Hole Sun" to my RADIO BARB YouTube account:

So, today I had a meeting with Dr. Lippert, which lasted about 75 minutes or so...

We spent a LOT of time covering the events from August 1996 - February 1997 leading up to the arson... Dr. Lippert asked me to do explain what caused me to commit the arson, so... I did, prefacing my "loooong story, Byzantine AND Baroque" narrative with just that statement as an introduction!

But anyway... it seemed to go well. It's very hard to say, because much of it depends on how a clinician will respond to a narrative relating a paranoid script... "The Plot"... that was intended ab initio by Susan to serve as a trap for the unwary. Or, alternatively, is the product of an experience of intense stress in a normally somewhat less-than-stable person while under the influence of an hallucinogen?

Yes, well, whatever. I shared the links to my YouTube RADIO BARB channel — <http://youtube.com/bonzeblayk>, with him, and also the links to the web pages I have set up containing my public exposition of the facts as I understand surrounding my ADR — <http://badtriprecords.biz/trainwreck.html>, and the private exposition and medical records, that I have shared only with professional clinicians (and you folks ;-) — <http://badtriprecords.biz/fqed.html>.

Anyway, Dr. Lippert is a neurologist as well as being a psychiatrist, so his report may well prove to be very interesting.

Thank you, and have a great day!

Yes, "mistakes were made", and not all of them were mine. See below for my email to Joanne regarding my recent corrections to the Wikipedia article on the M'Naghten plea in the section on the meaning of "wrong" in the plea, where it was... wrong (factually speaking.-). In jurisdictions outside of the UK, "knowledge that the act was wrong" refers to knowledge of moral rather than "legal" wrong...

I cite the NYS Jury Instructions, BTW. (beams, with pride... and joy!)

The clinicians have always seemed obsessed over the idea that I did wrong in the arson, that it was somehow malicious, — cf. p 4 Dr Lippert's report: "He stated he has not had any malicious feelings towards her or towards any other person in the 13+ years since the incident." — even though if the arson had been motivated by malice I would not have qualified for the insanity plea under New York law - it was not, and my plea and statements about the offense have all been honest!

Like what my MHLS lawyer up at the RRFU in 2003, Chuck ?, said regarding Dr. Kennedy's report of 1998 in which Dr. Kennedy claimed I burned down the trailer because I was "angry": "He's saying, almost straight out, you guys fucked up." [i.e., the DA's office and Judge Barrett]

- wrong.

Anyway, thanks again, Rich!

I thought you might find this provocative... I recently fixed the section in the Wikipedia entry on "M'Naghten rules" addressing the question of "what does the use of the term wrong in the rules mean?"

In England, higher courts have (incorrectly) interpreted it as "unlawful". In Australia and New York State... it means immoral.

... I can't believe I have to fix this kind of stuff, because it's very clear if you're familiar with the sources, but this article has been wrong for years... probably because people get it wrong all the time anyway.

Including OMH forensic psychiatrists.

Next edit →

THIS:

Knowledge that the act was wrong

The interpretation of this clause is a subject of controversy among legal authorities, and different standards may apply in different jurisdictions.

"Wrong" was interpreted to mean legally wrong, rather than morally wrong, in the case of Windle 1952 2QB 826; 1952 2 All ER 1 246, where the defendant killed his wife with an overdose of aspirin; he telephoned the police and said, "I suppose I'll hang for this." It was held that this was sufficient to show that although the defendant was suffering from a mental illness, he was aware that his act was wrong, and the defense was not allowed. Under this interpretation, there may be cases where the mentally ill know that their conduct is legally prohibited, but it is arguable that their mental condition prevents them making the connection between an act being legally prohibited and the societal requirement to conform their conduct to the requirements of the criminal law.

As an example of a contrasting interpretation in which defendant lacking knowledge that the act was morally wrong meets the M'Naghten standards, we have the instructions the judge is required to provide to the jury in cases in New York State where the defendant has raised an insanity plea to an offense:

... with respect to the term "wrong", a person lacks substantial capacity to know or appreciate that conduct is wrong if that person, as a result of mental disease or defect, lacked substantial capacity to know or appreciate either that the conduct was against the law or that it was against commonly held moral principles, or both.^{[6][7]}

Other support in the authorities also exists for this interpretation of the standards enunciated in the findings presented to the House of Lords regarding M'Naghten's case:

If it be accepted, as can hardly be denied, that the answers of the judges to the questions asked by the House of Lords in 1843 are to be read in the light of the then existing case-law and not as novel pronouncements of a legislative character, then the [Australian] High Court's analysis in Stapleton's Case is compelling. Their exhaustive examination of the extensive case-law concerning the defense of insanity prior to and at the time of the trial of M'Naughten establishes convincingly that it was morality and not legality which lay as a concept behind the judges' use of "wrong" in the M'Naghten rules.^[8]

NOT THIS:

Knowledge that the act was wrong

"Wrong" means legal wrong, rather than moral wrong, as demonstrated in Windle 1952 2QB 826; 1952 2 All ER 1 246, where the defendant killed his wife with an overdose of aspirin; he telephoned the police and said, "I suppose I'll hang for this." It was held that this was sufficient to show that although the defendant was suffering from a mental illness, he was aware that his act was wrong, and the defense was not allowed. There are cases where the mentally ill know that their conduct is legally prohibited, but it is arguable that their mental condition prevents them making the connection between an act being legally prohibited and the societal requirement to conform their conduct to the requirements of the criminal law.

Dear Kevin,

I got the results of my CYP2D6 genotyping test yesterday, and I've been found to be an "Intermediate Metabolizer", so I was correct in hypothesizing that I suffer from a deficiency in metabolizing drugs on P4502D6, and that this placed me at increased risk of an adverse drug reaction to Prozac, Prozac + Trazodone->mCPP, Prozac + Vistaril, and Risperdal. As it states on the Genelex web site <<http://www.healthanddna.com/healthcare-professional/p450-2d6-genotyping.html>>:

- Intermediate Metabolizers

Start IMs at lowest efficacious dose and avoid multiple drug therapy that inhibits or activates through the same pathway.

There are normally two alleles present; one of mine is normal, the other is wholly defective:

Cytochrome P-450 2D6 Mutations Detected

CYP2D6 allele	Variant	Effect on Enzyme Metabolism
*1	None (wild type)	Normal
*4	1846G>A; 100C>Tb	Inactive

I'm intending to have Dr. Breiman send you the lab report...

First, thanks again for your efforts on my behalf... I'm continuing to see Ms. Riley monthly for "non-therapy" at TCMH (and refusing to share my body fluids and pay the "urine tax", but still paying otherwise, alas!). Thankfully there have been no further alarums broadcast by Ms. Faber of the OMH.

re: Broder v. MBNA: using "may" for "will" is "misleading"

I thought you should be aware of this NYS court case, which came to my attention only when I recently received a notice in the mail, inviting me to consider a class action settlement with MBNA America Bank.

It appears the case hinged on whether the word "may" was used in a misleading and/or deceptive sense in a solicitation for low-APR cash advances; the courts found that the use of "may" rather than "will" was misleading, and violated the Consumer Protection Act.

This finding undermines the position of those who would insist that "may" means "must"... to the contrary, a reasonable person would find this to be a misleading use of language.

I'm appending a bit of the text below...

SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK COUNTY OF NEW YORK

GERALD D. BRODER et. al.
vs. MBNA CORPORATION and MBNA AMERICA BANK, N.A.

Index No. 98/605153
IAS Part 49
(Justice Herman Cahn)

NOTICE OF PENDANCY OF CLASS ACTION,
PROPOSED SETTLEMENT, FAIRNESS HEARING
AND RIGHT TO APPEAR

1. DESCRIPTION OF THE LAWSUIT

Plaintiff Gerald D. Broder alleges that defendants offered a special low APR for a prescribed period on monies borrowed as cash advances, but that defendants failed to fully provide plaintiff and the Class with the promised low APR. Plaintiff contends that, because of MBNA's payment allocation method, any Class members who accepted MBNA's low APR offer, used their credit card for purchases and made payments to MBNA on their credit card balance did not receive full benefit of the special low APR. In his complaint, plaintiff asserted claims for breach of contract, common law fraud and violation of the New York Consumer Protection Act. Plaintiff alleged that MBNA's solicitations were misleading because they stated that MBNA "may" allocate payments to cash advances balances before purchase balances rather than state that MBNA "will" allocate payments in that manner.

...The Court also denied in part and granted in part defendant's motion for summary judgment, sustaining plaintiff's claims for breach of contract and violation of the Consumer Protection Act, and dismissing plaintiff's claim for common law fraud. [Affirmed on appeal in the Appellate Division, First Department of the Supreme Court -- bonze]

Well, here's the document I mentioned, Dr. Deakin's application for Treatment Over

Oh, and here are some parenthetical remarks which aren't entirely necessary, but, hey: it's

"Bonzeanne Blayk presented at the interview dressed like a woman. He reported that his therapist instructed him to live and dress like a woman for at least a year as part of his gender reassignment process." - from the Forensic Committee report.

LOL, this is soooo wrong. You see, Joanne does not direct anything, although she does occasionally offer advice? I dress the way I like to dress; I'm affirming my gender through my self-presentation, and seeking sex reassignment... but, cisgendered folks have a very hard time understanding how this all works.

And, after all, I simply did not say that. Right?

I keep wondering just why it is that clinicians are immune to the consequences that journalists face when they produce quotations with "no audible means of support" ...

Not to mention Jayson Blair. Whatever: it's not like this one is libelous, it's just wrong, and kind of annoying.-)

From Dr. Lippert's report:

"His gestures were effeminate..." - LOL on "effeminate". Cf. "feminine".

"He was fully alert and clearly of above average intelligence with a subtle attitude of dismissal of others who did not equal his intellect or knowledge."

Actually, Dr. Lippert's getting close to the bone on this one...

I feel outright contempt for people who display wanton disregard for facts. A lot of this

Hi!

I met with Dr. Bezirgianian briefly today to sign this acknowledgment that a forensic committee review has been scheduled with me for March 22 in Binghamton, following their receipt of reports from Dr. Bezirgianian and Dr. Lippert recommending my discharge from CPL 330.20 status.

RE: Bonzeanne R. Blayk
AKA: Kevin Saunders

Dr. Bezarganian:

We have received your request for a Forensic Review of Bonzeanne R. Blayk (AKA: Kevin Saunders) for consideration of complete discharge from CPL status and discharge from his Orders of Conditions.

We have spoken with the patient on March 5, 2012 and he has agreed that 9:30 a.m. on March 22, 2012 is an acceptable date and time for him to be reviewed by the Hospital Forensic Committee, which will consist of Dr. Ivan Fras, Psychiatrist II; Jennifer Berryman, Ph.D., Chief Psychologist; and Carol Kelly, LCSW-R, Social Work Chief. The meeting will be held in the 2C Conference Room on the Second Floor of the Garvin Building.

Mr. Blayk will need to bring a NY State Photo ID to show to the Safety Officers in the lobby. We also need the attached OMH 496, Meeting Notification Form signed by the patient and his treating psychiatrist and returned to us at GBHC (via fax is fine and preferred) by March 15 in order to notify Mental Hygiene Legal Service in a timely fashion of the meeting date and time. You will receive this in hard copy, but I am faxing it to you to expedite this process. Please return it by fax to (607) 773-4656.

Thank you for your assistance in this matter.

Well, I may have gotten the idea across last time we talked: I started to get sucked down this rabbit hole some time - some years? - before January 1997...

I went down to the Cayuga Medical Center today to have them incorporate the Discharge Order into my medical records file there, which was performed effortlessly, and I've also left a copy with Dr. Breiman (my GP)... I'll probably go down to the TCMH office tomorrow to drop off a copy.

So naturally I would appreciate it if you would follow up on the failure to file the order with the AG... I'm pretty sure that the Tompkins Country DA's office had zero concerns here, though I do wonder whether any formal communication was made to that effect.

I have the sense that Judge Rowley would just as soon wash his hands of all this, given his comment at the release hearing that "this has taken quite a long time, and it has been very interesting observing this process" (in paraphrase), and maybe to boot - he's nervous about how I would dress? (lol - dammit, I had even picked up a skirt that I thought would be ideal for the occasion!)

And anyway, there is that check-off provided on the form: "_ And, a demand for a hearing not having been made", which indicates to me that holding a hearing is not a formal legal requirement to enter the Discharge Order... I'll have to look over CPL 330.20 again to make quite sure that this is the case!

thanks!

[Also, when a judge signs an order, either the Court or the clerk forwards it to the AG for filing, or files the original and notifies the AG about it. This would be the quarterly report he sends in to Binghamton on my current mental health and compliance with my Order of Conditions... could you please request a copy, and look over it?

I'm very curious to know just how strongly he's recommending my early release from the Order of Conditions, which he said he would do... without my asking, back on June 23rd, a position I am certain is reinforced by the results of my CYP2D6 genotyping test.

Also, regarding my transition: Dr. Zager is not willing to write a letter providing clinical attestation to my suitability for hormone treatment... because I'm still smoking, which is an unacceptable health risk when on estrogen, and she doesn't think I'm going to be able to quit and stay quit. On the other hand... she told me that she believes that transitioning is the right thing for me to do, and that she will write The Letter supporting SRS without hormonal treatment.

So I'm moving ahead with my name change, and am hoping to submit a formal application to the court for the change sometime within the next few months...

Pretty much awesomely 100% correct, in this case: Trazodone produces mCPP as a primary byproduct, and mCPP is an hallucinogen.

Just this morning I came across this web page for a GC/MS drug test for mCPP:

Category	Hallucinogen

I've appended an email that I worked on some after talking with Richard earlier this month, but had not sent out yet, regarding this issue...

Hi!

Thanks, Richard, for chatting with me yesterday... as I said, I believe that the clinicians (and even moreso, the DFS) is in the grip of "insanity" when they repeatedly describe me as an extremely violent person... where's the history? Oh, they latched on to an invented one!

The ultimate madness? I went over the EPC core history, which is not quite as howlingly bad (i.e., counterfactual in bizarre ways) as the one prepared at the RRFU in 1998... but... what can I say here?

That's the ONLY serious incident in my history.

The Official Story now in my case, as of the time Dr. Khan wrote his report supporting my release from the hospital, has been mangled into conformity with what appears to be the Standard Narrative: patient stops taking psychiatric drugs; patient drinks and smokes pot; patient goes nuts.

This is wholly false, but it doesn't seem to matter. ??? Three weeks prior to burning down the trailer, I was in a serious state of freaking out as a result of taking psychiatric medications, and nothing but psychiatric medications: I was under the influence of an hallucinogen: mCPP, to which I was exposed as a result of taking Trazodone as prescribed. And when I burned down the trailer, I was taking Prozac (and Vistaril PRN) as prescribed.

I documented the history of my symptoms as they developed over Jan-Feb 1997 in April 1997, and repeatedly provided that document to doctors, to the court, to the OMH... "Symptoms-1.txt" is now up on the Bad Trip Records website ("are we feeling irony yet?" ;-), but I haven't made it publicly available. Yet.

However, in that document, my description of my symptoms nails the physical and mental symptoms I experienced over those weeks in early January 1997 as being side effects caused by Prozac, Trazodone... and mCPP (regarding mCPP in particular, the extreme anorexia I describe helps establish that I was suffering the effects of exposure to mCPP, a "potent anorectic").

Oneiroid states (dreamlike but lucid waking states) as I lay semi-paralytic, practically helpless, and amotivational in my
bed. [3]
[NOTE: my recovered web logs show this occurred before 1/11/97]

[3]

In these states I experienced a horrifying confrontation
with my anima in a deSadean waking nightmare (as you might expect,
I projected my anima onto my girlfriend: it took me a week to grasp that this was projection, that I experienced my anima).

Is mCPP a hallucinogen?

Yes. It's a fact. A WELL-KNOWN FACT.

mCPP is not just a widely-used "drug of abuse"; it's widely regarded as a SHIT DRUG (a crappy substitute of Ecstasy/MDMA). Oh God, is mCPP a shit drug!

I find it difficult to understand why nothing's being done about this. Last time I saw Dr. Breiman (my GP), I requested that he submit an Adverse Drug Reaction report through the FDA's MedWatch, and gave him a copy of my ADR report...

Medwatch report to the FDA - Bad Trip Records

Hi Richard!

I left a message for Dr. Bezirgianian two weeks ago, and Linda Riley last week, but have not heard back from them... so I'd appreciate it if you'd give them a nudge...

And with respect to my treatment at Family and Children's Service back in 1996/1997 and my belief that I was a victim of fraudulent practices, the provable assertion that I was misled is evident in the Diagnosis and Treatment Plan Amari Meader (MSW) got me to sign in July 1996...

It seems obvious to me that this is fraudulent behavior; whether it's criminal fraud, as I assert in these notes I added for Dr. Zager back in April 2010, isn't completely clear to me, and I'd really appreciate hearing your take on it...

thanks!
... and have a great day!

Abstract

Since deleterious effects of m-CPP, the primary catabolic metabolite of trazodone, were last reviewed 2 years ago, research data continue to accrue showing that clinically significant levels of m-CPP (a) are generated in patients using trazodone for sleep and (b) are present 24 h a day and (c) have potentially serious ill effects. This commentary argues that the documented potential for harm and multiple risks of m-CPP outweigh potential benefits of trazodone, given the development and marketing of many safer alternatives since trazodone's introduction in the 1980s.

mCPP: an undesired addition to the ecstasy market.

Drug Information and Monitoring System (DIMS), Trimbos Institute for Mental Health and Addiction, Utrecht, The Netherlands.

Abstract

Abstract A new ecstasy-like substance, meta-chlorophenylpiperazine (mCPP), has been detected in street drugs in the Netherlands. Theoretically, mCPP possesses the potential to become a non-neurotoxic alternative for methylenedioxyamphetamine (MDMA), the regular psychoactive substance of ecstasy. Since its introduction on the Dutch market of synthetic drugs, the percentage of mCPP-containing tablets has increased, including both tablets that contain only mCPP and tablets containing a combination of mCPP and MDMA. These tablets occur in many different colours, shapes and sizes and with various logos, making it impossible to distinguish mCPP-containing tablets from regular MDMA tablets. In addition, the reports of users concerning the effects of mCPP are predominantly negative. All these aspects together lead to the conclusion that mCPP is an undesired addition to the ecstasy market from the user's perspective.

1. mCPP

26 up, 2 down

buy mcpp mugs, tshirts and magnets

1-(3-Chlorophenyl)piperazine or meta-chlorophenylpiperazine.

A compound sometimes marketed as an ecstasy substitute. Due to being legal in most countries and very easy to obtain, mCPP has found its way into many 'ecstasy' tablets being sold on the black market, particularly in the UK.

The chemical is used in the medical world for testing headache medication, as it is known to induce migraines in 90% of individuals who commonly suffer from them. As such, it is very rarely taken on purpose for recreational use and is only normally taken in error where the user is expecting MDMA (ecstasy).

Effects seem to vary dramatically from one individual to the next, but generally include headaches, gastrointestinal discomfort, tachycardia, dizziness, vomiting, hallucinations and insomnia. Some users claim mCPP produces a similar high to MDMA (ecstasy) - but most consider this high to be overpowered by the negative effects of the drug, making it not worthwhile. Effects normally come on within 30 minutes, beginning with stomach cramps and general discomfort. Many users report the comedown to include a searing headache felt in the front of the face and difficulty sleeping even many hours after ingestion of the substance.

Due to its vast array of effects, mCPP is often mistaken for other substances by those who are inexperienced or unaware of its existence. The rushing and jaw clenching often experienced leads some users to believe the pill they have ingested contains speed \(amphetamine\), while the trippy hallucinogenic side-effects lead others to believe the pill has been adulterated with ketamine or a phenethylamine such as DOB or 2C-B. Genuine adulteration with these psychedelic substances is actually very uncommon, and would produce very different effects in any case.

mCPP cannot be identified by any current pill testing kit, but experienced users can often identify it by means of taste - although it has a similar bitter taste to that of MDMA, it is somewhat tangy and citrus-like.

In recent months, mCPP pills have flooded the ecstasy market in the UK leaving traditional MDxx-based pills increasingly hard to come by and often more expensive.

Rockets, Bombs, Creams, and many more...

Be wary - mCPP is NOT ecstasy!

The first thing I did... was change all the references to "Kevin Eric Saunders" in Wikipedia articles on the Angry Samoans to "bonze blayk", providing the scans of the evidence via a web link. ;-)

Wow. I never thought that I would be so thrilled to be legally designated a "he/she"!

And if you happen to have a high tolerance for mediocre singing along with fairly skillful guitar playing rendering sometimes shaky renditions of some high-quality original tunes seasoned with my sense of humor, I've uploaded a video of my entire 38 minute solo performance from last Saturday to my YouTube account!

Nah, this just can't be right, and it needs to be fixed, because some clerk on down the line might just flag my case "SUBSEQUENT RETENTION ORDER" rather than reading the thing and getting it right... and then I'm stopped for a routine auto inspection by the State Police and yadda yadda yadda transpires?

My whole experience with this system is that so many non-experts will look at the big heading - like the one that appeared on the forms Liz down at the County Clerk's office generated erroneously, in good will of course! (she's very friendly, BTW.-), when making up the record of my acquittal -

CPL 60.60 - Certificate of Conviction

Well, that's all she had, right? She ran those off for other parties (sometime in March 2010 if my recall is correct), because she just didn't recall the peculiarities of the 330.20 plea disposition: not sealed, but still not a conviction... even after Kevin and I got them corrected in 2009... halfway, and still with a "CPL 60.60" emblazoned on it (wrong), so when I noticed that error, Liz custom-confected a "Certificate of Non-Responsibility" for me...

... Liz later gave me a free copy of my Certified Order for a Change of Name for free (rather than $5), with this Post-It note. I had joked about 9/1/11 being a "second birthday" for me when I was getting the papers for it filed with her earlier on? ;-)

And of course, nobody's really an expert in this stuff, there are too few jurists who care about the details of insanity law, and a bunch of them are heartless ideologues who don't believe in the concept of "criminal insanity" as a legitimate plea of innocence anyway... oh grrr!

But this is getting to the time when this game turns fun, now, so I shouldn't be complaining?

Anyway, I'm certainly not blaming you, or even Carol Cocchiola so much... because I'm sure you're both up to your eyeballs in alligators. The filing of a SUBSEQUENT RETENTION ORDER is probably so routine for Carol (or her secretary?)... she just didn't even notice the discrepancy. (BTW, I still think you did a good job in your summation on my case back in 2003, although with 4 experts in a phalanx lined up against me... we were "bound to lose".)

But this needs to be fixed... soon, I hope.

Have a great day, OK?

Thanks for the discussion re: my issues! Pursuant to that, here are the scans alongs with my comments on them...

This email contains scans of pages from various OMH documents which accompanied filings made to the courts; I have marked some sections with a yellow highlighter to draw attention to them. A number of the statements in the reports relate to my belief that in early January 1997, several weeks prior to my arson offense, I suffered an undiagnosed severe adverse drug reaction from the combination of Prozac and Trazodone, leading to a buildup of mCPP, the anxiogenic hallucinogen which is a byproduct of Trazodone.

The thing to note here is these statements are often presented in such a manner that they might be construed as endorsements of my belief... and on the other hand, my statements might be construed as obviously delusional; whether it's conscious or not, this looks like hedging to me. None of the OMH personnel who dealt with me either affirmed or denied that I had suffered from an adverse reaction... though on the stand in May Du, my "therapist" Janet Stevens referred to my "belief, or misbelief" that I had suffered from an ADR.

One goal I'd like to pursue is obtaining copies of the reports on the psychological exams performed by Jane DeSmith, Ph.D. (filed 8/6/03) and the forensic psychologist who came up to Elmira from Manhattan in 2006. I find the extract from Ms. DeSmith's report fascinating, and I'd really like to know what she has included in her report as the "history of his condition". Dr. Kashtan p. 18: "His impulse control is fair at this time, however, it is poor by history." Ah, that would be the bizarro-world history in which I physically abused Anne Marie Whelan for 14 years and consistently terrorized Susan Hamann... and had a lousy work record at Cornell... etc., etc.

I'm going to send you another email addressing the issue of my largely-invented "history of violent behavior", which I think has been another major problem for me in dealings with the OMH. It's very difficult emotionally for me to address, as it would be for anyone falsely accused of serious crimes; the primary evidence I can provide here are scans of Anne Marie Whelan's court testimony (noting a few incidents of harassment on my part at the very end of our relationship, rather than assault), and Dr. Connor's report indicating that Alice Richardson "contacted staff to state that although he was agitated and upset, he was not threatening to anyone (4/11/03 progress note, signature illegible)", contrary to the claims of the reports regarding my hospital admission on 4/4/03, when I was seeking a voluntary admission with Alice's assistance.

thanks,

kesaunders@databeast.com

Here's a copy of the page of the Treatment Plan containing the assertion that I was suffered from an (unspecified) "fixed delusional system".

Back in 2000, when I prepared the chart below, I wasn't just making wacky assertions pulled out of my posterior... I was basing them on knowledge obtained from research which I compiled and summarized along with 45 pages of citations based on abstracts obtained from PubMed... neither this chart nor the compilations of abstracts were reviewed by Dr. Kashtan when he prepared his affidavit of 9/17/03 supporting an application for a first retention order. (He notes several times in his report that I repeatedly brought up the issue of Prozac/Trazodone/Vistaril side effects as critical factor in my mental state in Jan/Feb 1997, but makes no comments directly addressing whether this belief is being held to be delusional...)

Here are the abstracts with key points garnered from them regarding the metabolism and

pharmacological properties of mCPP:

Regarding my statements cited in the reports below regarding the incompetence of psychiatrists and therapists... here's a pertinent quotation:

<<http://ajp.psychiatryonline.org/cgi/content/full/160/1/4>>

"The accumulation of such evidence and opinions led Allen Frances, the chairperson of the task force that produced DSM-IV, and Helen Egger (35) to comment gloomily, but perhaps presciently, that 'we are at the epicycle stage of psychiatry where astronomy was before Copernicus and biology before Darwin. Our inelegant and complex current descriptive system will undoubtedly be replaced by...simpler, more elegant models.'"

And as for my statements that some psychiatrists and therapists have, to my knowledge, lied, there are many falsehoods asserted in these documents; to judge whether they are lies, one has to decide when a misstatement of fact qualifies as a "lie". (And outside these documents and parties to them... Amari Meader of Family and Children's Service, my "therapist" from 7/96 through 1/97, was an A #1 champion liar; the Treatment Plan she had me sign provides prima facie evidence of fraud, establishing both suppressio veri and suggestio falsi in the contradiction between the diagnostic codes and the plain English in her "plan". "Diagnosis doesn't matter" -- Amari Meader.)

Dr. Kashtan here cites Dr. Belsare's notes from 5/23/02 in his Clinical Summary accompanying the request for a First Retention Order. Note that after this meeting, where I believed that Dr. Belsare was behaving in a hostile, confrontational, and dismissive fashion, I wanted to have counsel present at my meetings with her to help ensure that my statements would not be misrepresented. Dr. Belsare denied this request because presence of counsel would "interfere with therapy". Well, sure enough, she did misrepresent my statements. The remark of special interest here is Dr. Belsare's comment that "delusions continue", which almost certainly refers to my beliefs regarding my experience with Prozac and Trazodone.

In the meeting Dr. Belsare "describes" here, I posed a direct challenge to her: "mCPP is an hallucinogen: Yes or No?"

She didn't respond.

... later in Dr. Kashtan's report...

Dr. Robert's TOO, referring to "delusions" regarding drug metabolism... note that I have "raped and assaulted others", a wholly false assertion. All the underlines and "< F" (False) marks were made when I first saw this document.

Dr. Khan's Clinical Summary of 9/10/07 accompanying the request for a Conditional Discharge. Note that he claims I "admit" to not taking Prozac and Trazodone as prescribed... when I did take Prozac as prescribed, and was taking 20 mg. Prozac daily up to the day of the offense; he also attempts to put across the idea that I was smoking marijuana daily up to the day of the offense, when I had stopped smoking about 10 days previously (after resuming smoking for 2 weeks, after ~6 weeks of abstinence) so Dr. Stackman could get a clean NCV test.

On the second page he notes that I have "been in complete remission of his psychotic symptoms since December 2004". That's 20 months after I recovered from the psychotic episode... what were those "psychotic symptoms" supposed to be? A certain "fixed delusional system", perhaps?

Back in May I scanned photographs of my house taken by my mother, Jean Saunders, during the periods of time in 1997 and 2003 when she came to help out in response to my catastrophes. I uploaded them to my web server on June 1, but neglected to share the link with you at that time. Here it is:

<http://badtriprecords.biz/songs/dynasoar/gif/blayk/fcs/AliceHRichardson.zip> 400MB

In 1997 my mother took photos to document the status of Susan Hamann's possessions in my home, and incidentally its appearance at the time.

In 2003 she documented this once again... and incidentally, the state of my home just prior to Alice Richardson taking advantage of her 4 1/2 year residence (for "$50 a month", as she told my mother... which she never paid) in my home to fill it chock-full of her possessions.

There is also a very disturbing set of diary entries made by my mother from 2003, in which she describes the hostile reception accorded her by Alice Richardson during her month-long visit, in the directory "1668 Inventory of Susan's possessions 4/2003".

Thank you!

Sorry to take so long to get back to you...

As you might have guessed, the point is moot, since as it turns out the folks in Finland <<http://www.ssh.com>> who were interested in licensing dataComet lost an arbitration hearing on their own licensing agreements for SSH applications in September and subsequently their ardor for concluding a deal (and flying me out to Finland) declined... (see <http://www.f-secure.com/news/2000/news_2000090500.shtml>). They later renegotiated their agreement so they could resume sales of their Windows/Unix applications, but I rather doubt that they are allowed to sell products for the Macintosh platform in the new deal (the other party, F-Secure, currently offers the only commercial Macintosh SSH application, and I doubt they would welcome the competition... which they will get anyway, since I'm now developing the software independently, and soon dataComet-Secure will be the 2nd commercial Macintosh SSH application :->).

Of course, if the deal had been feasible, quibbling interference of this sort from the OMH might have made it impossible to follow through. As with the case when I wanted to make sure it was OK to have a housemate: Linda talked with me about it, had me write up some questions which I might pose to a prospective housemate (9/15/98), took it up with Elmira, who passed the buck up to the OMH in Albany, who eventually passed it again to the AG's office... and a year later when I repeat the question for the 10th time, Doreen tells me the answer was: "The Attorney General's Office says it's purely your business if you want to have a housemate."

Fortunately my financial situation had improved somewhat, so I had managed to scrape by without the extra money.

thanks anyway!

Hi Richard!

I hope you are doing well...

All of a sudden, it's become rather important to me to find out what date the hearing might be held, whether sooner, or later, because the gal who was going to move in with me here in September is losing her job, and has begged off from the deal... incredibly cheap (for Ithaca) at $420/month total for half the house, 3BR of ~700 sq.ft. and a separate Bath.

Unfortunately, it's kind of critical for my economic survival in the near term to get a housemate soon, and it is alas looking very likely that I may wind up with someone who is not especially convivial... it would be super-helpful to have the Discharge in hand and done as opposed to making the claim that my discharge is "mostly a matter of form at this point, and is almost certainly going to work out fine", however true that may be.

The insanely-cheap deal falls out from the nature of SSDI's accounting for rental income, which garners no net gain if you charge more than precisely the amount of expenses for rent. Alas again, precisely due to the ridiculously low rent involved, just advertising a house-share on craigslist is not an option... I do not want to attract housemates from among the loony/druggie/parasite crowd that would be most drawn to the proposition, involving as it does the "questionable" aspect of living with me, (LOL!), and they might be able to pose as "passably human" for the brief amount of time I'll have available to check them out.

This is a heavy sigh kind of occasion, because Sarolta (Gabriella De Faltay), my prospective housemate, would have been ideal - she's kind of on the emotive/dramatic side, but isn't that what you expect from a gal who is an awesome singer/songwriter? Yeah well. "Such is life."

thanks!

EVALUATION FOR TREATMENT OVER OBJECTION

Patient Identifying Information:

Name: Saunders, Kevin
Ward: Admit Date: 05/23/03
DOB: 05/01/56
Consec. #: 085-274
Legal Status: CPL 330.20

SECTION 1- CLINICAL ASSESSMENT

Clinical Summary:

Mr. Kevin Saunders is a 47 year old, white male with a long history of psychiatric illness. On May 23, 2003, he was admitted to the Rochester Regional Forensic Unit (RRFU). In February of 1996, he psychotically decompensated. He set fire to his girlfriend's home and subsequently was found Not Guilty by reason of mental disease or defect. In May of 1998, he was released from the RRFU on an Order of Conditions and was followed at the Tompkins County Mental Health Center for the next four years. In April of 2002, he was "kicked out" of Tompkins for noncompliance and refusing to submit to toxicology screens. He reported that around this time he was arrested for DWI with a blood alcohol concentration of .15. He expressed dismay about the concentration of alcohol because he reports drinking only "four beers in four hours". When asked what he thought about this, he replied "someone spiked my drink". Because of his continued marijuana use and refusal to take recommended medications, it was decided that his care would be transferred to Elmira Psychiatric Center (EPC). Before this transfer could take place, he ended up being admitted to the Cayuga Medical Center after exhibiting bizarre behavior. He stated that at the time he was "psychotic and delusional" but he attributed this to medications (Prozac and Trazodone) which had been prescribed a few days earlier. He was not able to recollect the events surrounding this admission.

2/5/97
2/98 - 3/98 - EXAM
12/22/96
1/8/97 - 2/8/97

In May of 2002, Mr. Saunders began receiving treatment at the EPC Outpatient Clinic and was followed by a new psychiatrist, Dr. Belsare. While there, he continued to refuse to take medication that was recommended for him.

In April of 2003, Mr. Saunders was again brought to the Cayuga Medical Center for bizarre behavior. He said that he was walking around "barefoot and naked" but he did not think he was psychotic. He said that he often walked around naked outside and this was "natural". His friend called an ambulance after he told her that he was the "reincarnation of Hitler". He also stated that he believed he was a "robot". He was transferred to the EPC Inpatient Unit. While there, he continued to refuse medications and reportedly assaulted a staff member although he did not recall this event.

He was transferred to the Rochester Regional Forensic Unit on May 23, 2003 and has continued to refuse medication. When asked why this is the case, he replied, "I don't know what they're for." When asked if he had a diagnosis, he replied, "I don't know, I think it may be temporal lobe epilepsy." He believes past treatment providers have conspired against him to falsify his records. He stated that his RRFU Social Worker "lied" about him in her assessment. When asked what treatment would be best for him, her replied, "marijuana helps me focus and be productive." However, he did state that he may be willing to take a "low dose" antipsychotic, like Zyprexa, after conferring with a psychiatrist of his choosing. It is my opinion that this may be a ploy to avoid a court ordered treatment over objection.

2/6/97 - The offense was committed on Feb. 6, 1997 NOT "in February of 1996".
2/98 - 3/98 - EXAM - One year AFTER the offense, I underwent a two-month inpatient EXAMINATION and was found not mentally ill; this phrasing implies I was committed for over two years -- from 2/96 - 5/98!
12/22/96 - Five YEARS earlier than this document asserts: soon BEFORE the offense.
1/8/97 - 2/8/97 - Five YEARS earlier than this document asserts.

Dear Bonze:

You have consulted me about various issues concerning someone who used to reside in your house, but who moved out some time ago and left many items of personal property in your home. You have asked whether you can move that property from its present location, in your home, to storage to one of the barns on your property.

You can. At this point, however, you should take reasonable steps to safeguard the property from damage due to the weather, the elements, or other hazards.

You do not have to hold that property and safeguard it forever. At some point, you may wish to write to the individual, giving her a fixed period of time to remove the rest of her personal property, and advising her that if she does not remove the property by that date, you will consider the property to be abandoned by her, and you will dispose of it accordingly.

I hope this answers your present question. I encourage you to speak further with an attorney who handles these types of matters more regularly than I do when you want to close this matter completely.

Respectfully yours,

JAMES A. BAKER

So... as "fallout" from my call to Judy Conley, Dr. Bezirgian scheduled a meeting with me tomorrow, just to verify that I'm doing OK... anyway, as I told you on the phone, Judy (Dr. Conley now?) was in the manta.com business directory, so I didn't think there would be a problem with giving her a call; we never had any problems in our relationship that I could see, and she was, to boot, the only therapist with whom I had individual psychotherapy in my entire 4 1/2 years of institutionalization.

I'm attaching a PDF printout of Judy's page on manta.com... FYI.

Also, Dr. Bezirgian told me that the OMH has decided that a report from another psychiatrist (as opposed to a psychologist) supporting my release from my 330.20 status and the Order of Conditions would be adequate, so tomorrow we're going to schedule a meeting with one of the psychiatrists at TCMH... wonderful news!

Hi,

I wanted to let you know that my quarterly meeting was moved up to yesterday after I found I had a scheduling conflict with a Social Security hearing with our scheduled March meeting...

The meeting went well; Dr. Bezirgianian said that he would propose to the OMH that they should lift the restriction on my travel outside of NY; I suggested that he might also propose releasing me from the Order of Conditions altogether, and he said he'd add that on also.

He also gave me his brief review of the video I made on 1/30/11 for the Foo Fighters' THIS VIDEO SUCKS! contest, which I had mentioned to him the day before when he called me to reschedule my appointment: the singing in the first song... well, it's a quite a nice song, but... maybe somebody else would be better suited to the tune? He liked my singing on the second song; and otherwise the performances, in particular my guitar playing, were quite good.

Whatever, I am looking forward to disco tonight with DJs Bob Proehl and Luke Z Fenchel (Esq), and the fabulous Anna Angel was pleased to hear news of my Discharge and will probably be showing up (that's her on the right: she assisted with my SSA back payment denial appeal while an intern with Cornell Legal Aid, and she's currently awaiting the results of her bar exam.-).

Soooo I hate to think of this, but even though my "Indian Name" is Talks With Cats, someone might try to tag me with Dances With Lawyers? Hmmm.

Luke's a fan (both of me as a singer and the Angry Samoans), and may even be coping OK with the horror! of our conversation some six weeks ago during a meeting to arrange for him to draft contracts for Bad Trip Records (me) to manage licensing for the Angry Samoans, where, as an introduction to "what it is", I gave him a brief overview of my situation and why I'm entering a field ("The Industry", the music business that is?) where nobody makes any money, and his first reaction after I got into my imbroglia with F&CS was...

Dear Kevin,

I have received a copy of the March 28, 2002, letter to you from Fred Manzella concerning the transfer of your CPL 330.20 monitoring services. If you would like me to attend the proposed meeting with Mr. Manzella and Ms. Riley in Ithaca, please let me know.

I would greatly appreciate it if you could attend the meeting, thanks...

Additionally, do you know why this transfer of services is occurring at this time?

No... I left a call for Linda Riley at TCMH after I received the letter on Friday, but haven't heard back from her. I was intending to contact you after getting some more information from her; our last meeting was on Friday 3/22, and she didn't indicate that any changes were planned.

Our next meeting was scheduled for Friday 4/26 at 11 AM; scheduling a meeting for that time would be fine with me.

Let me know if our office can assist you in any manner.

I got a copy of my Tompkins County court records from the Clerk's office last week, and was once again amazed at just how badly the OMH manages to screw up.

In one case, they apparently have my "bonze blayk" A/K/A wrong in their "DATA BASE" as "BONZE BLAKE"... I've attached the letter I sent to them. (I've used the name "Kevin Eric Saunders a/k/a bonze blayk" almost everywhere since 1992... e.g., I signed my "confession" to the 1997 arson "Kevin Eric Saunders a/k/a bonze blayk" with both signatures.)

This is important to me, because I expect the court will object to my petition if they believe that I'm seeking to change my name in order to avoid the label "F.K.A. KEVIN SAUNDERS", and evade being connected with my past... in particular, the arson offense, my mental health history, and whatever debts I may still owe as "Kevin Eric Saunders".

This is not at all the case, since I'm not going to pursue what is known as a "stealth" transition to female (with all ties to my past cut off and denied, relating concocted stories about my life history as a natal female); I intend to do so as a trans woman, reasonably passable and socially tolerable as a woman, with complete SRS and legal affirmation of such... but without sundering ties to my past, or my family and friends, who thus far have exhibited an almost-astounding degree of acceptance (even encouragement in many cases!), of my pursuit of this goal.

thanks!

PS: Dr. Kashtan at the RRFU recognized that I was transexual back in 2003. He noted that to me on his own initiative; I never brought up my GID issues with OMH employees, because I figured it would just cause more problems for me. E.g., Dr. Kashtan himself would not have been able to vouch for me in seeking SRS, since he's not an expert in assessing GID.

Dear Folks,

I recently obtained images of my court records, and found a significant error in an OMH "DATA BASE" record pertaining to my case; my a/k/a, "BONZE BLAYK", is spelled incorrectly:

DATA BASE

Date: May 2, 2000 Name: KEVIN SAUNDERS
(A.K.A. BONZE BLAKE)
NYSID #: 08493564N DMHIS #: SS#: 431-88-9647
FBI #: 892819DB6
Sex: Male DOB: 5/1/56 Age: 44 Race: White

This error is significant, since I have identified myself fairly consistently since 1992 as "Kevin Eric Saunders a/k/a bonze blayk", and have never used the surname "Blake". For substantiation of this claim, you may refer to www.facebook.com/bonze.blayk, or Google "bonze blayk"; here also is an image from my NYS rap sheet:

I'm also using the name "Anne Rose Blayk", so please add it as another A.K.A.; within a few months I will be petitioning to legally change my name to Anne Rose Blayk, as a step in transitioning to female and eventually undergoing SRS, which I am doing in conformity with the clinical guidelines established by the WPATH Standards of Care.

On Wed, 14 Nov 2001, Richard Wenig wrote:

Dear Kevin,

Thanks for the e-mail message you sent today. I was wondering what you thought of Ms. Faber's recent letter. It would seem that there is a clinical divergence between what the Tompkins County MHC feels is in your best interest versus what the OMH Forensics Bureau believes.

Evidently, at least as far as Ms. Riley's opinion is concerned.

Ms. Faber has repeatedly made statements to the effect that "we have to make it tough for insanity acquittees so criminals won't take advantage of the plea" and has said that "my only interest here is in enforcing the Order of Conditions" (as opposed to following up on therapeutic concerns regarding various mis-diagnoses, e.g., "Undifferentiated Somatoform Disorder"). This indicates to me that my "best interests" aren't a major concern to Ms. Faber.

An irony here is that I maintained steadfastly that I was psychotic at the time of the arson in the face of widespread skepticism, and that for years I unnecessarily dreaded a recurrence, until I finally identified a reasonable cause behind the month-long physical & mental illness which preceded my offense. Ms. Faber evidently still feels skepticism, since on 2/9/01 she asked whether I "feel any guilt" about the arson! (I think seeking acknowledgment of guilt and contrition would be appropriate in assessing the rehabilitation of parolees or probationers, but is terribly inappropriate for 330.20 acquittees. From Ms. Faber's statements, it appears that disregard for the judgments of the judicial system on the issue of a person's sanity at the time of an offense is common within the OMH.)

At any rate, from what Ms. Faber said at the meeting on 10/30/01, I gather she intends to submit a critical report to the OMH when she submits her recommendations to them (and apparently will argue for an extension of the Order of Conditions). I doubt that anyone presently considers me either dangerous or mentally ill, including Ms. Faber.

We can address the issues here several ways, but I feel the "low road" would be a meeting with you, me, Ms. Faber and Ms. Riley in Ithaca. Please let me know your opinion about my suggestion, as well as whether there is a joint meeting with both Ms. Riley and Ms. Faber scheduled with you in the near future.

There is no joint meeting with both Ms. Faber and Ms. Riley scheduled at this time. I'm scheduled to meet with Ms. Riley on 11/27 for routine "monitoring."

Having you attend a joint meeting would be fine with me. I probably would have asked you to attend this most recent meeting; however, I had very brief notice, as I was called to schedule the meeting just one day before it took place.

thanks,

PS - Do you prefer the lightlink or databeast addresses for your e-mail?

"bonze@databeast.com" is preferred, since that's my email address in my own business domain; "lightlink.com" is subject to change if I switch to another ISP ("databeast.com" is hosted by my ISP, "lightlink.com", as a virtual domain--my email address is listed on the email header as "bonze@lightlink.com" primarily because some mail servers will reject email originating from an address which is a virtual domain).

BTW, I recently released dataComet-Secure and redesigned the website at <http://www.databeast.com>. It's mildly hilarious to me that while I'm independently developing sophisticated Internet-Standard compliant communications software in my professional life, as a "client" I'm delivered dictates on the received meaning of the word "may" in OMH-land. There's an Internet Standard for the meaning of the word "may": see <http://www.faqs.org/rfcs/rfc2119.html>, "Key words for use in RFCs to Indicate Requirement Levels":

"5. MAY

This word, or the adjective "OPTIONAL", mean that an item is truly optional."

You mentioned that it might not be too expensive for me to afford an expert witness to assess the evidence that Trazodone/Fluoxetine -> mCPP induced my psychotic state at the time of the offense... I would appreciate any suggestions you might have. (The primary tests that would be involved regarding my ability to metabolize compounds via P450 would be a debrisoquine metabolism test--P450IID6 alone--and a test of dextromethorphan metabolic ratio--P450IID6 vs. P450IIIa4... these tests shouldn't be particularly expensive in themselves.)

Thanks for the discussion re: my issues! Pursuant to that, here are the scans along with my comments on them...

This email contains scans of pages from various OMH documents which accompanied filings made to the courts; I have marked some sections with a yellow highlighter to draw attention to them. A number of the statements in the reports relate to my belief that in early January 1997, several weeks prior to my arson offense, I suffered an undiagnosed severe adverse drug reaction from the combination of Prozac and Trazodone, leading to a buildup of mCPP, the anxiogenic hallucinogen which is a byproduct of Trazodone.

The thing to note here is these statements are often presented in such a manner that they might be construed as endorsements of my belief... and on the other hand, my statements might be construed as obviously delusional; whether it's conscious or not, this looks like hedging to me. None of the OMH personnel who dealt with me either affirmed or denied that I had suffered from an adverse reaction... though on the stand in May 2003, my "therapist" Janet Stevens referred to my "belief, or misbelief" that I had suffered from an ADR.

One goal I'd like to pursue is obtaining copies of the reports on the psychological exams performed by Jane DeSmith, Ph.D. (filed 8/6/03) and the forensic psychologist who came up to Elmira from Manhattan in 2006. I find the extract from Ms. DeSmith's report fascinating, and I'd really like to know what she has included in her report as the "history of his condition". Dr. Kashtan p. 18: "His impulse control is fair at this time, however, it is poor by history." Ah, that would be the bizarro-world history in which I physically abused Anne Marie Whelan for 14 years and consistently terrorized Susan Hamann... and had a lousy work record at Cornell... etc., etc.

I'm going to send you another email addressing the issue of my largely-invented "history of violent behavior", which I think has been another major problem for me in dealings with the OMH. It's very difficult emotionally for me to address, as it would be for anyone falsely accused of serious crimes; the primary evidence I can provide here are scans of Anne Marie Whelan's court testimony (noting a few incidents of harassment on my part at the very end of our relationship, rather than assault), and Dr. Connor's report indicating that Alice Richardson "contacted staff to state that although he was agitated and upset, he was not threatening to anyone (4/11/03 progress note, signature illegible)", contrary to the claims of the reports regarding my hospital admission on 4/4/03, when I was seeking a voluntary admission with Alice's assistance.

thanks,

kesaunders@databeast.com

Here's a copy of the page of the Treatment Plan containing the assertion that I was suffered from an (unspecified) "fixed delusional system".

Back in 2000, when I prepared the chart below, I wasn't just making wacky assertions pulled out of my posterior... I was basing them on knowledge obtained from research which I compiled and summarized along with 45 pages of citations based on abstracts obtained from PubMed... neither this chart nor the compilations of abstracts were reviewed by Dr. Kashtan when he prepared his affidavit of 9/17/03 supporting an application for a first retention order. (He notes several times in his report that I repeatedly brought up the issue of Prozac/Trazodone/Vistaril side effects as critical factor in my mental state in Jan/Feb 1997, but makes no comments directly addressing whether this belief is being held to be delusional...)

Here are the abstracts with key points garnered from them regarding the metabolism and pharmacological properties of mCPP:

Regarding my statements cited in the reports below regarding the incompetence of psychiatrists and therapists... here's a pertinent quotation:

<<http://ajp.psychiatryonline.org/cgi/content/full/160/1/4>>

And as for my statements that some psychiatrists and therapists have, to my knowledge, lied, there are many falsehoods asserted in these documents; to judge whether they are lies, one has to decide when a misstatement of fact qualifies as a "lie". (And outside these documents and parties to them... Amari Meader of Family and Children's Service, my "therapist" from 7/96 through 1/97, was an A #1 champion liar; the Treatment Plan she had me sign provides prima facie evidence of fraud, establishing both suppressio veri and suggestio falsi in the contradiction between the diagnostic codes and the plain English in her "plan". "Diagnosis doesn't matter" -- Amari Meader.)

Dr. Kashtan here cites Dr. Belsare's notes from 5/23/02 in his Clinical Summary accompanying the request for a First Retention Order. Note that after this meeting, where I believed that Dr. Belsare was behaving in a hostile, confrontational, and dismissive fashion, I wanted to have counsel present at my meetings with her to help ensure that my statements would not be misrepresented. Dr. Belsare denied this request because presence of counsel would "interfere with therapy". Well, sure enough, she did misrepresent my statements. The remark of special interest here is Dr. Belsare's comment that "delusions continue", which almost certainly refers to my beliefs regarding my experience with Prozac and Trazodone.

In the meeting Dr. Belsare "describes" here, I posed a direct challenge to her: "mCPP is an hallucinogen: Yes or No?"

She didn't respond.

... later in Dr. Kashtan's report...

Dr. Robert's TOO, referring to "delusions" regarding drug metabolism... note that I have "raped and assaulted others", a wholly false assertion. All the underlines and "< F" (False) marks were made when I first saw this document.

Dr. Khan's Clinical Summary of 9/10/07 accompanying the request for a Conditional Discharge. Note that he claims I "admit" to not taking Prozac and Trazodone as prescribed... when I did take Prozac as prescribed, and was taking 20 mg. Prozac daily up to the day of the offense; he also attempts to put across the idea that I was smoking marijuana daily up to the day of the offense, when I had stopped smoking about 10 days previously (after resuming smoking for 2 weeks, after ~6 weeks of abstinence) so Dr. Stackman could get a clean NCV test.

On the second page he notes that I have "been in complete remission of his psychotic symptoms since December 2004". That's 20 months after I recovered from the psychotic episode... what were those "psychotic symptoms" supposed to be? A certain "fixed delusional system", perhaps?

Well, it is kind of your job, but you are being kind, and I greatly appreciate it! ;-)

Anyway, here's Kevin Moshier's letter to Judge Rowley asking just why the OMH seemed to be stalling my case in extraordinary ways, including their demand for a psychological examination by Dr. Belfi, conducted in August 2006 (not 2007: oops!)

He will presumably recall some of the circumstances - they were extremely odd, to my mind at least.

If so, I can e-mail those to him. Please let me know.

Yes, those are the letters... please do send them along!

I am completely amazed by Fred's statement that Alice is my "paramour", defined in Merriam-Webster's On-Line Collegiate Dictionary as:

Main Entry: paramour
Pronunciation: 'par-&-"mur
Function: noun
Etymology: Middle English, from par amour by way of love, from Middle French
Date: 14th century
: an illicit lover

... especially since I've clearly communicated to all concerned that Alice and I are good friends, but do not have a sexual relationship (as I related in my first session with Dr. Belsare, I have not had a sexual relationship of any kind since December 1996).

Regarding Dr. Roemmelt's discharge notes, he fails to note Dr. Breiman's diagnosis... he described my illness to Alice as a "viral syndrome". These are the diagnostic codes which have appeared on my billing statements:

Dr. Baker 311 4/266:00PM
311 Depressive disorder, NOS (!)

Dr. Murray 780.09 4/27 8:00AM
780.09 Semicoma, stupor (ICD-9)
Alteration of consciousness, other 780.09 (Medicare CPT code)

Dr. Kardon 401.9 4/29 Hypertension
401 Essential hypertension
401.0 Malignant essential hypertension
401.1 Benign essential hypertension
401.9 Unspecified essential hypertension

Breiman 465.9 4/30, 5/03
465 Acute upper respiratory infections of multiple or unspecified sites Excludes: upper respiratory infection due to:
influenza (487.1)
Streptococcus (034.0)
465.9 Unspecified site
Acute URI NOS
Upper respiratory infection (acute)

No throat culture was taken until Dr. Breiman ordered one -- on the fifth and last day of hospitalization. I complained repeatedly about my physical illness and consistently elevated temperature (99.6 degrees, as opposed to my normal 98 flat), but did not receive any appropriate response (for example, being allowed to get bed rest rather than participating in therapy sessions, or being allowed to sleep at night rather than suffering interruptions every 15-30 minutes by staff checks).

Wow. I don't call this "health care." For this, I'm another $8,000 in debt?

By the way... if you are interested in an amusing diversion in your spare time... Dr. Belsare, "my" state-provided psychiatrist at the EPC, has made several fascinating postings to Usenet which can be retrieved from the Google Groups website, particularly:

<<http://groups.google.com/groups?q=tara+belsare&hl=en&lr=&selm=Pine.A32.3.91.960721201406.36302D-100000%40green.weeg.uiowa.edu&rnum=2>>

I'm attaching my notes on my meeting with Dr. Belsare Thursday 5/23/02, which I made shortly thereafter. My recall of verbal interactions is imperfect, as are most people's, so many quotations are likely to be paraphrases, but I believe this is a reasonably accurate recollection of this astonishing conversation.

thanks,
bonze

Here's the record of my diagnoses which I assembled from scans and other reports to which I have access. My favorite: "Gender Identity Order"!

Elmira Psychiatric Center Core History, 4/4/03

And note the first entry from the EPC containing the Axis V summary: Current GAF 60, Past GAF 30 ... which will be repeated verbatim through Dr. Khan's Release Request on 9/10/07.

This is what is known in my trade as a WTF!

Thanks, Rich!

I appreciate that "some people have got some really 'complex matters' going on", and am deeply grateful that mine nowadays don't come anywhere near qualified, no kidding + LOL!

Everything's great, totally awesome, except that I need to find a replacement for the gal (a friend and a great singer) who was going to move in with me... the job she wanted at the Cayuga Medical Center fell through, etc., and so financially clearing out the rest of Alice's stuff and getting the house fixed up is really urgent?

Otherwise, 100% great!

I called to check in with you about whether the Court Clerk has formally notified the AG's Office of my Discharge Order.. I feel some (minor) concern over this, and want to make sure that it's truly completely nailed down.

The procedural oddity here is... "odd". ???

And also, I wanted to ask you whether you know anything regarding the clinical psychologist on the staff at the CMC, Dr. Kevin Field? He is the only therapist who is "in-program" with my "Total Care" Managed Medicaid package, and I feel that I ought to have some clinician locally who is familiar with me who also deals with the hospital, admissions, getting people back out, and so forth.

Joanne (Dr. Zager) is awesome, an incredible therapist, but she hasn't returned my email in a while (but she's like that sometimes, and I believe really needs clients who can pay full scale right now? And may also be on vacation?), and besides she doesn't deal with the hospital... ever. At all.

I'm going to go down and see Dr. Connor at some point, we shared a the brief discussion last week while he was on his cell and couldn't schedule it, so I am waiting for him to call me back...

... and BTW, I ran into Linda Riley at Lowes' a few weeks ago ("B.D." - "Before Discharge") ... we chatted for a bit, and shared a big hug. She's a good person, IMO; I think she thinks I looked pretty decent wearing a skirt and top and smiling broadly? (lol)

So, I would appreciate chatting with you sometime when you have more time... particularly in respect to anything you may now about Dr. Field, who is an enigma (no info online regarding his orientation, preferred therapeutic modalities, or anything really).

thanks!

Dear folks:

At last, I'm able to make progress on clearing my home of the rubbish (good riddance, but damn, it is a lot of work sorting through it all!)

Wow, but this feels good!

Thanks to my recent receipt of a partial payment of what I am owed by Social Security, I can get things done in clearing out my house!

I have changed the locks, and informed Alice in person that she is no longer welcome to come on my property without calling first and making arrangements...

It was impossible to make progress on cleaning ANY of this disaster area because Alice would freak out over every detail, and interfere with making forward progress... and I had NO MONEY for hauling.

And the irony? I'm taking MUCH better care of her possessions than she does.

My friend and neighbor Mark Finnigan (the bass guitarist for 5 Mile Drive... and IT Director for the Seneca School District!) helped me... ah, directed me in the removal of the two wrecked living room sofas from the house yesterday, which will be hauled off my property soon.

ALL of this trash had to be sorted through for valuables. So I did.

The Zone of Liberation!

So far I have used up $50 in Tompkins Waste punch tickets removing her ... waste products.

... 7 Volvo 940 Wagon loads in 11 days!

thanks! and have a great day!

Thanks for keeping in touch, Richard!

Yeah, the legal issues with respect to transsexual/transgender matters are ridiculously complex, in part because the "transgender umbrella" covers so many somewhat-distinct varieties of gender-variant behavior (including "transvestic fetishism", LOL!).

"The bathroom problem" is a biggie, inasmuch as I'm now wearing skirts - most of the time during the summer, in fact. Also worthy of note: I'm on 200 mg of Spironolactone for hypertension, which also happens to be the primary anti-androgen used in the US, and I am ultra-happy to have great results with it, including gynecomastia? (While smoking pot never worked for me... DAMN THOSE LYIN' FEDS !-)

Anyway, I hope you've had good luck with your work this week... I saw both Dr. Zager and Dr. Connor over the last two weeks, mostly just to check in, but also to relate my distress at realizing that Alice Richardson is sociopathic (or so crazy as to make no difference?).

I'd like to obtain the records from Cayuga Medical Center on my admission in April 2003 which led to my institutionalization, since it's become clear - in conversations with my mother about her extremely bad experience with Alice when she came up to Ithaca at that time, and with others who have been friendly with her - that Alice habitually makes false reports of bad behavior on the part of others. (Relevant because Alice repeatedly told me that she DID NOT make a number of statements attributed to her by the CMC staff regarding my behavior that I knew to be false, and it seems clear now that she did make those claims.)

Of course, I can submit a HIPAA request for the records, and of course they can summarily deny it, so I'm uncertain as to the best approach for writing up such a request...

thanks!

Dear Kevin,

Another angle of approach which would be useful in promoting the idea that I should be released from the Order of Conditions is that, in truth, most of the claims made in the "histories" of my "violent behavior" are hyperbolic... at best. A lot of these accusations are derived from Susan Hamann's (bizarre) allegations in her statements appearing in Dr. Kennedy's report of 3/98: for instance, the repeated assertions that I raped Susan, and physically abused my former wife, Anne Marie Whelan, for 14 years. (The phrase I used in the Subject line above was one of the accusations leveled against me in the Treatment Plan which was prepared for me (without my involvement) and presented to me at my first Treatment Planning meeting at EPC in April 2003, which they wanted me to sign without reading. I read it, and refused to sign it.)

Another dubious claim is made in my CMC hospital admission in April 2003: that I was threatening towards myself and Alice Richardson the day before, a claim which Alice denied in a statement she had placed in my progress notes (cited in Dr. Connor's report, which for some reason was not submitted as evidence).

After all, "the best predictor of future violence is past violence"; including false allegations of violence only serves to contaminate the process of prediction.

Please note that I don't intend to share this letter with anyone outside of yourself, Richard Wenig, and others in the MHLS who might be interested: I'm observing the need for circumspection in this matter. I'm now aware that I have a right under HIPAA to request corrections in my medical records... but I know that just because I have that right doesn't mean that it's a good idea to invoke it. First off, somebody might get the impression that I'm on some kind of "manic crusade", and secondly, I have the impression that folks in the OMH are rather touchy about acknowledging that they produce records that are seriously flawed in their factual content.

thanks,

scans from Dr. Khan's Release Evaluation of 9-10-07

Almost all of the "Previous violence" Comments here are wrong; only two out of the eight paragraphs contain claims that meet the criteria stated for inclusion. My remarks on these comments appear below the scans, and below those are scans with contrary evidence--Anne Marie's statement under oath, and Dr. Connor's report referring to Alice's attempt to correct the record. (And that's Susan Hamann, not Hammond.)

In the case of Ms. Hammond, his ex-girlfriend, he had been physically and sexually assaultive and had intended to kidnap her. He also had destroyed her trailer home and car by arson.

The truth is that I have never willfully assaulted anybody, physically or sexually (the only possible instance of assault would be on 4/5/03, when I was supposed have assaulted staff at EPC: I have no memory of this). Susan Hamann's claim that I assaulted her and subjected her to sexual intercourse without her consent on January 29, 1996 is false, and has no evidentiary support; a charge of "Harassment in the second degree" (NY Penal Code Section 240.26) was filed in this case and later dropped. Susan claimed I begged her to come over for Christmas, after she had not seen me since she moved out in August, and then forced sex on her; the truth is that she volunteered to come over for Christmas, we engaged in sexual intercourse many times during her visit that Christmas, when she slept with me for five nights, that over the previous six months we had met in public several times, and moreover she had come over to my house and slept with me on about six nights (one time for three nights straight). Susan Hamann's statements, as quoted in Dr. Kennedy's report of March 19, 1998 on pp. 7-9, and in many reports thereafter, contain some ludicrous falsehoods.

S 120.00 Assault in the third degree.

A person is guilty of assault in the third degree when:

1. With intent to cause physical injury to another person, he causes such injury to such person or to a third person; or
2. He recklessly causes physical injury to another person; or
3. With criminal negligence, he causes physical injury to another person by means of a deadly weapon or a dangerous instrument.

Assault in the third degree is a class A misdemeanor.

Peaceable ownership of firearms in the home is not violent. I was not "caught" with two unregistered handguns on January 29, 1996; I surrendered them voluntarily to the Sheriff's deputies after Susan Hamann called the Sheriff's department to file a complaint, and the deputies asked me to turn over any firearms in my possession.

Before and during my hospitalization on April 27th, 2002, I committed no acts of violence, and made no threats. I made statements after I went to the hospital ER on April 26, 2002, to the effect that I believed that I might be the reincarnation of Hitler when the physician asked "Do you have any unusual thoughts?" I returned home with the recommendation that if I lost another night's sleep, I should return to the hospital. I did so the next day, was promptly swept into the BSU, and at that time stated that I was on a mission. I believed that I was in truth a kind of ANTI-Hitler, whatever evils might be connected with the historical Hitler, and the mission was to go to the hospital, though I didn't say that at the time. There were no assaults or threats made.

I did not hear any command hallucinations other than "bonze blayk, keep dancing!" and "Put on the clothes that were left for you" in the morning preceding the arson. My "confession", taken on February 6, 1997, which includes the false statement that "I believed that I was hearing messages through the radio telling me to kidnap Susan", was mangled by the trooper who took my statements and altered them; when I attempted to correct the false statements he had introduced, he urged me to "hurry up, we haven't got all night". Believing myself to be in the middle of an enormously scary plot involving preventing a release of anthrax by volunteering myself as a sacrifice, I did as he asked.

(Regarding my "confession" and the false claim that I was "responding to auditory command hallucinations" at the time of the arson which appears in most of the psychiatric reports: Note that I stated clearly at the time I made my verbal statement after my arrest that "I was hearing voices over the radio, and I thought that I was supposed to quote kidnap endquote Susan". I succeeded in adding those quotation marks around a later occurrence of the word "kidnap" in one occurrence of the word in my "statement": this was a play-act intended to deceive "Hannibal Lecter". Moreover, Susan Hamann was not "my estranged girlfriend" as stated in my "confession": she had visited me at my home (with David Fogel) eight days before the arson out of concern for my health, a fact which I have never previously stated. Here's a plausibility check regarding this "confession": where, outside of legal/police circles and TV shows, would anyone employ the phrase "my estranged girlfriend"? The truth is that Susan has never said to me that our relationship is over. In fact, to my amazement, she continued to express an interest in a romantic relationship with me even after the arson in a number of phone calls she made to me from after the Order of Protection expired in June 1997 up until January 1998.)

Prior to asking Alice to call an ambulance to take me to the hospital on April 4, 2003 in order to commit myself voluntarily, I did not make threatening statements toward anyone, and there was no "verbal altercation" with Alice Richardson; see page 2 of Dr. Connor's report below for a reference to the statement she had entered in my progress notes on April 11, 2003.

My relationship with Anne Marie Whelan was not a "long-term conflicted relationship". After 12 years of living together continuously in a reasonably harmonious relationship, our relationship became highly conflictual starting in October 1992, when Anne Marie decreed that we were going to have an "open marriage". Within two weeks (with encouragement from Anne Marie) I'd found a girlfriend... who was interested in joining our marriage! Anne Marie shortly thereafter managed to arrange and stage manage a catastrophe on February 14, 1993, by encouraging her new (dangerous, and grossly unsafe) boyfriend to molest me--she was present--which led directly to our separation in June and divorce the following year.

Here is Dr. Connor's report; Alice's statement appears on p.2. I've included the whole thing, since it's brief and kind of interesting. One thing to note is that Dr. Connor rebuts Dr. Robert's assertions which represent me on 4/19/03 as if I were still psychotic and misbehaving, when I had recovered on the 6th and thereafter my behavior was very good thereafter (even after I was assaulted by William Sherman).

PSYCHOLOGICAL EVALUATION

Client: Name: Kevin Saunders Birthdate: May 1, 1956
Education: College Grad + Occupation: Computer Programmer
Marital Status: Divorced, one child
Attorney: Richard Wenig Age and Sex: 47 Male

Evaluation Date: May 8, 2003

Purpose of Evaluation: Richard Wenig of the NYS Mental Hygiene Legal Services requested an independent evaluation of Kevin Saunders (a.k.a. Bonze Blayk), an involuntary patient of Elmira Psychiatric Center. Mr. Saunders is being evaluated with respect to treatment over objection and possible transfer to the Rochester Psychiatric Center Forensic Unit. Mr. Wenig and Mr. Saunders were informed that the evaluation might or might not be of use to them in a retention hearing, and they requested that I proceed with that understanding.

Assessment Procedures: Clinical Interview
Review of Saunders Medical Records
Review of Saunders "Selections from a Literature Search on the Effects, Mechanism of Action, and Metabolism of mCPP, the Principal Metabolite of Trazedone, with References (5/22/2000)
Review of Saunders "Literature Search on Side Effects, Drug-Drug Interaction, and Metabolic Deficiencies in CYP2D6 Activity Relating to Fluoxetine, Norfluoxetine, Trazedone, and mCPP, with References" (5/24/2000)
Review of 6 page "To Whom It May Concern" letter by Kevin Saunders (6/2/2000)

Appearance, Mannerisms and Behavior: Kevin E. Saunders is a heavyset 47 year old white male with long black hair which is beginning to turn grey, and glasses. He wore a long-sleeved dress shirt, worn black jeans, and casual shoes. His grooming and general appearance were slightly unkempt. He maintained eye contact throughout the 2 hour interview, and was consistently smiling and friendly. Mr. Saunders provided a rambling account of events, diagnoses and treatment he has received, and his attitudes and opinions. When asked structuring questions, he was able to provide relevant and coherent responses. At no time during the 2 hour interview did he manifest any threatening or aggressive verbal behavior. He was oriented with respect to person, place, and time. There were no indications of hallucinations during the interview. He admitted to being delusional at times in the past; it was difficult to determine if he was continuing to express delusional material from those episodes.

Summary of Record Review:

Mr. Wenig provided the application for an order authorizing involuntary treatment of Kevin Saunders, affidavits in support of the application by Dr. Carlos delos-Reyes and Dr. April Roberts, the current Quarterly CPL 330.20 Monitoring Report dated March 28, 2003, Clinical Summary by Dr. Roberts dated 4/9/03, Elmira Psychiatric Admission and Progress Notes 4/4/03 to 4/23/03, Screening/Admission Note and Psychiatric Evaluation by Dr. Roberts dated 4/7/03, Initial Psychological Assessment and Mental Status Examination by Dr. Pavinelli dated 4/8/03, Core History by Meghan Lawrence, SWI dated 4/9/03, Discharge Summary from the Cayuga Medical Center at Ithaca by Dr. Roemmelt dated 5/3/02.

Mr. Saunders' record establishes, and he does not dispute, that he was admitted to Elmira Psychiatric Center of 4/4/03 at a time when he was agitated, doing bizarre things, and delusional (e.g. claiming to be Hitler). The affidavits state that he was threatening to others, but Mr. Saunders maintained, and it is supported in the progress notes, that his housemate, Alice Richardson contacted staff to state that although he was agitated and upset, he was not threatening to anyone (4/11/03 progress note, signature illegible). Both prior to his admission to Elmira Psychiatric Center and after, he refused to take prescribed medications or to provide results of drug tests. The affidavits assert that Mr. Saunders is dangerous to others, citing the 1997 arson and "a history of rape and assaultive behavior in the past and recently at the hospital he tried to assault the staff." He is also considered dangerous to self citing self-abusive behavior and abuse of alcohol and drugs. Although the affidavits appear to imply that Mr. Saunders was aggressive and assaultive throughout his stay, the progress notes report problems the first two days, during which Mr. Saunders was placed in restraint, and after that "He has only the one incident of being aggressive and assaultive that I know of. Has always been pleasant and friendly to me and has done what was asked of him." (Judy Natebaert, TA, Weekly SOAR note). He did continue to refuse to take the medication prescribed for him, and to tell staff who attempted to "teach" him that he considered the medication harmful to him. All of the inappropriate and aggressive behavior reported in the affidavits occurred during the first 3 days of his admission to Elmira Psychiatric Center. I found no reports of Mr. Saunders undressing or being naked, following other patients, requiring restraint, or being assaultive after 4/7/03; to the contrary, the common phrase regarding Mr. Saunders was "pleasant and cooperative" by a variety of staff.

The CPL 330.20 Outpatient Quarterly Monitoring Report noted that Mr. Saunders

attended his monthly appointments with his Personal Service Coordinator/Therapist (PSC), and was cooperative and pleasant, with no reports of violent acting out behaviors. The Forensic Committee recommended transfer of the case back to the Tompkins County Mental Health Clinic for followup. Mr. Saunders continued to refuse medication and urine drug screen, and to admit to regular marijuana use. Mr. Saunders was considered appropriate for community placement and not dangerous to himself or others at that time (March 28, 2003).

In the Psychological Assessment by Dr. Pavinelli, it was reported that Mr. Saunders was found to be of Superior Intelligence in 1997 (Wechsler Adult Intelligence Scale Full Scale IQ of 127). Also, "He has periods of hypersexuality, sexual ambivalence and he is a devout cross dresser....He has a very high sense of self worth despite being seen by others around him as being egotistical, inconsiderate and arrogant. The patient had very clearly presented with sexual identification problems. He tends to cross dress and sees no real problems with wearing female clothing." Dr. Pavinelli diagnosed him Bipolar disorder with psychotic features exacerbated by alcohol and cannabis abuse.

A year before the current episode, Mr. Saunders suffered a brief psychotic episode and took himself to the Cayuga Medical Center. The Discharge Summary by Dr. Roemmelt of the Cayuga Medical Center at Ithaca reported that he came in an acutely psychotic state. He was given 2 doses of Haldol and his thinking cleared dramatically, perhaps too quickly to be a drug effect rather than placebo. He was discharged on no medication and given an appointment at the clinic where he had been seen for several years. Dr. Roemmelt pointed out to Mr. Saunders that there was no chemical involved this time or apparent explanation other than a sore throat and elevated white count (which would not precipitate an event in an ordinary person), that Mr. Saunders has "an underlying predisposition to deterioration into psychosis."

Patient Perspective:

Kevin Saunders provided his perspective on the key events in his life, diagnosis and treatment in a 2 hour clinical interview, and 2 literature searches and a "To Whom It May Concern" letter in May/June of 2000. In January of 1997, Mr. Saunders was experiencing neurological symptoms, including numbness, paresthesias, balance difficulties, and vision disturbances. He was also experiencing psychiatric symptoms including confusion, delusions, paranoia, and hallucinations. He believed in 1997 that these were symptoms of a neurological or autoimmune disease.

In May of 2000, however, on the basis of reviewing the literature on the 2

medications he was taking in January, 1997, Trazedone (for sleep) and Prozac, he concluded that he was suffering from an adverse drug reaction. The primary metabolite of Trazedone is mCPP, an anxiogenic agent which can produce depersonalization and hallucinations. Excretion of mCPP was prolonged by urinary retention, constipation, and hypophagia caused by Fluoxetine (Prozac). Mr. Saunders concluded that his neurological and psychiatric symptoms in January and February of 1997 were best accounted for by this adverse drug reaction.

Mr. Saunders considers himself a "transgendered lesbian," a woman in a man's body who is sexually attracted to women. He identified with women from a young age, was uncomfortable with "male dominance games," and "the male attitude toward sex." Mr. Saunders cried easily and was expressive emotionally. When he moved into a dorm at the University of Texas, he experienced his first male bonding experience, and felt that his dormmates were tolerant of his being different. He believes that he is beautiful as a woman, and could pass as a woman with hair removal, makeup, and woman's clothing. He has never affiliated with any transgender or transvestite group, and was offended when Dr. Belsare suggested a transvestite program in Pennsylvania; the brochure for the program had a picture of a man in a dress on a tractor which is obviously an inappropriate place to wear a dress. Mr. Saunders was deeply attached to his wife, and persuaded her to go out together socially on occasion as 2 women; she was not comfortable with such activity, however, and his gender identity disorder was a major factor in their divorce. They have remained friends, and prior to his hospitalization, Mr. Saunders cared for their daughter several days a week. When he committed the arson in 1997, he was dressed in an evening gown and high heeled shoes.

Mr. Saunders began smoking marijuana as a college student at the University of Texas, and believes that it helps him focus in his work. He has gone periods of up to 2 years without marijuana, smokes only a small amount each day when he is using it, and experiences no withdrawal symptoms when he does not use it.

After finishing college, Mr. Saunders came to Ithaca for graduate school in Economics at Cornell. However, he did not find the courses interesting, and became a computer programmer for the university from 1986 to 1994. He developed the Cornell Macintosh Emulation Terminals software (COMET), which is still used at Cornell. In 1994, he worked for 9 months for Millennium, a Rochester firm, negotiated an agreement with Cornell allowing him to market COMET, and started his own business. Last year he grossed $25,000 in his business, which he operates out of his home.

Mr. Saunders was extremely critical of the reports by Dr. Singh and Dr. Kennedy of the Rochester Forensic Services, and of his treatment by the Office of Mental Health. He did have a good relationship for 4 years with Linda Riley (6/98 to 4/02), who was Forensic Coordinator for Tompkins County and his therapist especially for gender identity issues. He stopped providing drug screen test reports because they cost him $45 each, and he didn't think it was fair that he had to pay for them. Mr. Saunders felt that the Elmira Forensic Coordinator tried to "threaten me into conformity" and he was transferred from Linda Riley and Tompkins County to Elmira Psychiatric Center Outpatient Services in March, 2002. Mr. Saunders acknowledged that he was delusional on admission to Elmira Psychiatric Center on May 4, 2003, but he felt he was ready to leave on May 8, 2003.

Diagnosis:

Axis I	302.85	Gender Identity Disorder, sexually attracted to females.
	298.8	Brief Psychotic Disorder without marked stressor, in remission.
Axis II	301.9	Personality Disorder NOS with borderline and narcissistic features
Axis III		Transient hypertension
Axis IV		Track 3 CPL 330.20 legal status, divorced
Axis V		Current GAF 55 circumstantial speech and moderate difficulty in social and occupational functioning Highest GAF in past year 55

Conclusions:

1. With respect to diagnosis, the primary (active) psychiatric diagnosis is Gender Identity Disorder, a diagnosis agreed to by the patient and a variety of staff who have evaluated Mr. Saunders, including his treating psychiatrist, Dr. Roberts.
2. A secondary diagnosis, which appears to be most consistent with the three psychotic episodes described in the medical record and by Mr. Saunders (2/97, 4/02, 5/03) is Brief Psychotic Disorder, currently in remission. Mr. Saunders concluded in May of 2000 that the first episode was an adverse drug reaction, but the episodes of 4/02 and 5/03 are not consistent with that conclusion. There is support for Dr. Povinelli's diagnosis of Bipolar Disorder in the medical record, but Mr. Saunders rejected that diagnosis. Dr. Roberts, his treating psychiatrist, diagnosed him Psychotic Disorder NOS.
3. From review of the medical record and Mr. Saunders' report, it was concluded that although Mr. Saunders admits to use of alcohol and cannabis on a regular basis, the criteria of clinically significant distress or impairment for diagnosis of abuse or dependence were not met; Mr. Saunders believes the cannabis helps him in his work, and reported no distress associated with either cannabis or alcohol. The medical record does not document clinically significant impairment associated with either alcohol or cannabis. Therefore no diagnosis of substance abuse or dependence was made.

4. Mr. Saunders is not psychotic or dangerous to himself or to others at this time. The medical record and Mr. Saunders' report are consistent that he was psychotic for a few days to two weeks in January-February of 1997, the end of April, 2002, and the beginning of May, 2003. The medical record, Mr. Saunders' report, and my observation during the 2 hour interview with him on May 8, 2003 are consistent that his behavior when he is not in a brief psychotic episode is not aggressive or self-destructive, bizarre, delusional, or hallucinatory. The most recent outpatient quarterly CPL 330.20 monitoring report prepared at the end of March, 2003 reported that Mr. Saunders was suitable for community placement and not dangerous to himself or others. There have been no reports of violent behavior since 1997 when the arson occurred.

Recommendations:

1. It is recommended that Mr. Saunders be discharged from Elmira Psychiatric Center and referred to Linda Riley of the Tompkins County Mental Health Center for outpatient treatment. His psychotic episode is considered to be in remission. It is recommended that Mr. Saunders be monitored, weekly initially and eventually monthly for signs of decompensation. If there are particular stresses on Mr. Saunders, the monitoring should be close (weekly).
2. It is recommended that Gender Identity Disorder be considered the primary psychiatric disorder, and that treatment specific to that condition be provided. Also, it is recommended that Mr. Saunders be strongly encouraged to explore affiliation with individuals and/or groups in the transvestite/transgender community. Such affiliation would be expected to provide him with a sense of community and belonging.

Hi Kevin!

I had a very interesting meeting with Dr. Bezirgianian yesterday... we spent a lot more time in this meeting than usual, something like 35 minutes as opposed to 15 minutes, and the discussion covered a lot of ground as I tried to put forward my case for pressing for an early release from the Order of Conditions. Dr. Bezirgianian made a couple of interesting statements I'll place up front: he doesn't think I'm psychotic, nor does he think I suffer from schizophrenia or other illness manifesting itself in chronic psychosis; nor did Dr. Brink believe that I suffered from a chronic psychotic disorder when she was serving as my psychiatrist; and that I've been free of psychotic symptoms for two years while being essential unmedicated: that the prescription for Seroquel he had made for me back starting in 2008 to substitute for Risperdal (which was inducing rather nasty extrapyramidal side effects at 25mg biweekly) was intended as a sop for the OMH folks, that the 100mg. dose I was placed on initially was nowhere near the dosage required to suppress psychotic symptoms.

We very briefly discussed the travel issue, and I simply pointed out that I was letting you and the MHLS lawyer(s) in Binghamton handle it... that I couldn't provide more details regarding travel times and flights without actually purchasing tickets, and that would place $800 at risk if the travel was not approved; he thought that was reasonable.

I asked Dr. Bezirgianian to please consider promoting my early release; he was initially inclined to waiting until after I traveled to Little Rock, since he thought he would have to push for that in his next report, but I believe I brought him around to the point that doing so immediately was a good idea.

I asked him whether he had looked over the results of my CYP2D6 test; he hadn't, so I gave him a copy. I went over how I had arrived at the conclusion that I had suffered from an adverse drug reaction: that I had always known that in January 1997 I had suffered from a nearly-disabling physical illness, despite being diagnosed as suffering from Undifferentiated Somatoform Disorder; and that I'm very capable of distinguishing between my psychological distress and physical distress.

I explained to Dr. Bezirgianian that therefore I continued to try to figure out the cause of my physical symptoms in January 1997; I still considered that I might have a Chronic Relapsing Polyneuropathy, because such illnesses can manifest themselves in peculiar and baffling ways that aren't always easy to diagnose. Going over Dr. Stackman's notes from January-March 1997 once again in the year 2000, I noticed that he mentioned that Prozac may cause peripheral numbness/paresthesias; I then looked into it further, found that Trazodone also may cause peripheral numbness, and then discovered its dread metabolite mCPP, which taken all together thoroughly explained why I was so colossally fucked up in early January 1997.

1. pointed out how starting with Dr. Belsare in 2002 my belief that I had suffered from an adverse drug reaction was characterized as delusional, and that Dr. Kashtan continued in this; that my documentation on the pharmacology and pharmacokinetics of the drugs involved, and the nature of mCPP was never reviewed by these folks.

Gary Surdell told him that if they went to a jury trial he thought the jury would look at my behavior at the time and conclude that I was crazy, crazy, crazy.

So: I just got off the phone with Dr. Bezirgianian (after calling for Dr. Lippert and getting the call referred to "the Director") ...

Dr. Bezirgianian said that he had discussed my case with Dr. Lippert, and told me that "none of us finds you to be psychotic", and that they would be proceeding with performing a Hare Psychopathy Checklist "from my record" (by Linda Riley, the chief forensic therapist at TCMH)... and that I might also have an interview.

I noted that my records at the State OMH level are hopelessly corrupt and full of misconceptions and complete untruths... Dr. B. didn't make it clear which records will be used in doing the Hare assessment? And I also commented on the ridiculous assertions and assessments found in the 300 pages of psych reports from EPC which are publicly available now as digital copies for $5 (since Judge Rowley did not order them sealed). He told me I could submit a statement of corrections to be entered into the official record (which I believe would just get buried in the mass of "data" at the state level).

I told Dr. Bezirgianian that I would provide Linda with copies of the Relationship History and Personal History that I had prepared for her back around 1999 to serve as my statements on my history (since the worst of the fallacious assertions in the "record" revolve around my purported "history of extreme violence against women", and I believe I dealt with the issues there in a reasonably forthright and honest fashion in those documents).

Dr. Bezirgianian commented that my history of "crabbiness" might not even show up as a factor worthy of note in the Hare... which has me laughing my ass off ;-)

Thanks!
And have a great day!

Hi there!

I submitted my application for a change of name 5 weeks ago, and when my Petition to Apply as a Poor Person was rejected last week, I paid the $210 required to have the Petition considered by the Supreme Court.

Judge Mulvey has sent a notification to State AG Carol Cocchiola and ADA Gary Surdell to give them an opportunity to review their position on this and respond with written objections, if any, within 20 days...

I can send you copies of the material I submitted in support of my petition if you'd like...

Here are scans of the 2 pages of the letter I received today, along with a copy of the petition...

I just received you mail with the Discharge Order enclosed, but it "appears to have the wrong title on the NOTICE OF ENTRY"?

Oh gee, do I have to dot every i and cross every t here? That's a rhetorical question: the answer is:

"That's why the Goddess creates trans-geeks."

It's true!† LOL - still, this is exasperating!

Nah, this just can't be right, and it needs to be fixed, because some clerk on down the line might just flag my case "SUBSEQUENT RETENTION ORDER" rather than reading the thing and getting it right... and then I'm stopped for a routine auto inspection by the State Police and yadda yadda yadda transpires?

My whole experience with this system is that so many non-experts will look at the big heading - like the one that appeared on the forms Liz down at the County Clerk's office generated erroneously, in good will of course! (she's very friendly, BTW.-), when making up the record of my acquittal -

CPL 60.60 - Certificate of Conviction

Well, that's all she had, right? She ran those off for other parties (sometime in March 2010 if my recall is correct), because she just didn't recall the peculiarities of the 330.20 plea disposition: not sealed, but still not a conviction... even after Kevin and I got them corrected in 2009... halfway, and still with a "CPL 60.60" emblazoned on it (wrong), so when I noticed that error, Liz custom-confected a "Certificate of Non-Responsibility" for me...

Certificate of Non-Responsibility

STATE OF NEW YORK:

COUNTY OF TOMPKINS:

COUNTY COURT

Certificate of Disposition
Indictment No.: 97-019

The People of the State of New York,
Plaintiff

Against

Kevin E. Saunders,
Defendant

DOB: 05-01-1956
NYSID: 8493564N
ARREST: 02-06-1997

This is to certify that as to the charge(s) of:

One Count Burglary in the Second Degree, PL-140.25-02; Two Counts Arson in the Third Degree, PL-150.10-01; One Count Criminal Mischief in the Fourth Degree, PL-145.00-01; One Count Criminal Contempt in the First Degree, PL-215.51-0D.

On 07-28-1997, Defendant entered plea of Not Responsible which was accepted by the Court.

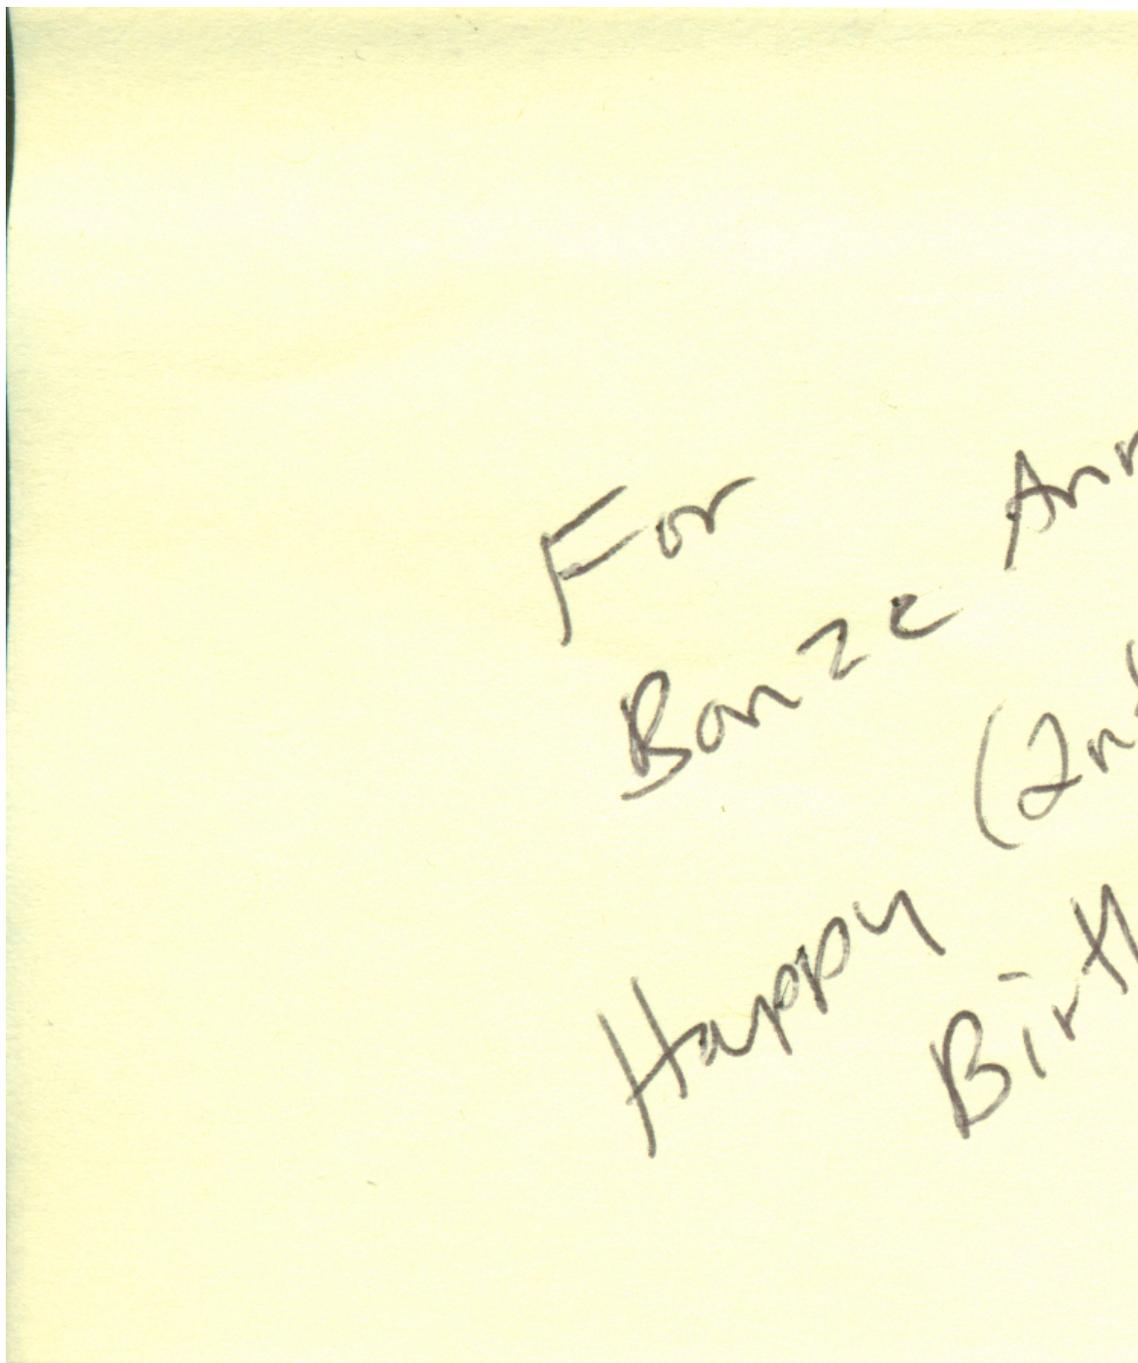

No Sentence was imposed.

Aurora R. Valenti

Tompkins County Clerk

... Liz later gave me a free copy of my Certified Order for a Change of Name for free (rather than $5), with this Post-It note. I had joked about 9/1/11 being a "second birthday" for me when I was getting the papers for it filed with her earlier on? ;-)

And of course, nobody's really an expert in this stuff, there are too few jurists who care about the details of insanity law, and a bunch of them are heartless ideologues who don't believe in the concept of "criminal insanity" as a legitimate plea of innocence anyway... oh grrr!

But this is getting to the time when this game turns fun, now, so I shouldn't be complaining?

Anyway, I'm certainly not blaming you, or even Carol Cocchiola so much... because I'm sure you're both up to your eyeballs in alligators. The filing of a SUBSEQUENT RETENTION ORDER is probably so routine for Carol (or her secretary?)... she just didn't even notice the discrepancy. (BTW, I still think you did a good job in your summation on my case back in 2003, although with 4 experts in a phalanx lined up against me... we were "bound to lose".)

But this needs to be fixed... soon, I hope.

Have a great day, OK?

thanks!

Hi folks!

It's painful going over the history here, but quite necessary - because there is information of great value buried in it?

I believe the folks in the OMH always bought into my counterpart Susan's story, where she moves in with me and then BANG! - finds out I am the Worst Person in the World! ... and is gone within two months.

They could not have got that more wrong. My latest Facebook Cover Photo Art:

The relevant sections of the source documents in toto -

Susan's statements, as cited in Dr. Kennedy's report of 4/96 on my postacquittal psychiatric evaluation pursuant to CPL 330.20...

... for those not attuned to the legal niceties of insanity acquittals, the statements here by Susan Hamann R.N. - in psychiatric nursing - which characterize me as a criminal rather than a mentally ill person? - set me up quite nicely as a person exempt from psychiatric hospitalization under the Supreme Court holding in Foucha v. Louisiana.

That was intentional on her part.

My former wife's statements from a complaint she filed against me on June 23, 1997, seeking sole custody of our 9-year-old daughter, Rachel...

"Making assertions is easy, proving them is HARD!" - BARB

The irony here is overwhelming: that my former wife's lies about me were in part motivated by her desire to cover her tracks - because she was the rapist† in our relationship? - and that Susan's lies were intended to eventually benefit both of us, in the Baroque interplay that underlay the working-out of the 100% legal BDSM-themed long con I refer to as The Plot.

That was two years of living together, continually open to interaction 24x7x365...

... not "two months" of BRUTALITY.

I hope we're all clear on that, and that as well, the claim "revealed" by Susan Hamann that there is history of alleged physical abuse of Ms. Whelan for approximately 14 years. is true! It was alleged by blowhards at the Task Force - NOT Susan and NEVER by Anne Marie! You see, my former wife? She suffers from a birth condition known as "Bitchy Resting Face," and the blowhards were blaming it... on me!

LOL! - Facebook link and... the PDF of it from 8/11/13:

From 1990, 10 years into our relationship... yes, there it is!

"Bitchy Resting Face"

thanks...

Sincerely yours,

† Besides staging a co-rape of me back on February 12, 1993, Anne Marie also entered into a sexual relationship with an incompetent (a 40-year old Alzheimer's case from a wealthy family) while he was in her care as a health aide back in 1994... weird, eh?

Bad things happen when people succumb to erotomania, it's true. The law holding that "incompetents may marry only someone they promised to marry before being found incompetent" is the reason Susan got that statement regarding my marriage proposal into the record - we discussed it at the time Anne Marie's misbehavior became known to us (she got fired... and it was hushed up).

Well, I do make progress in getting shit done, impoverished though I may be:

B.A.R.BLAYK - Behind Blue Eyes - THE WHO - from Monday 4/21/14 Karaoke at The Dock - topnotch production!

With respect to my psychotic episodes of April 2002 and April 2003, it became increasingly clear over time that Alice Richardson is an entirely untrustworthy individual (see my open documentation supporting her eviction at <http://www.badtriprecords.biz/alice.html>) who is highly exploitative in her relationships with others, lies freely, and routinely misrepresents the behavior of others, including my own behaviors and those of my mother Jean Saunders during her visit to offer support in April 2003...

A damning confirmation that Alice had obtained pot spiked with PCP for me in 2003 (and in 2002 likewise) was a conversation I had with my friend Mary Ott, former co-proprietor of The Rongovian Embassy restaurant/bar and music venue in Trumansburg and the structure housing it along with her husband Eric...

Mary related to me that in the course of defending against the $1,000,000 lawsuit Alice brought against the Ott's for her "fall" down the stairs from her apartment above The Rongo in April 1999, three witnesses stated that she had to have thrown herself down the stairs: it was, in fact, a failed suicide attempt that caused the injuries that led me to take her in as a charity case, and no accident.

This confirmed for me - indirectly? - that Alice's evasions and resort to flaming outrage when I questioned her about why she had thrown away the marijuana I wanted tested following my five-day hospitalization in April 2002 were a misdirection. Having looked over the symptomatology associated with PCP intoxication, I concluded the hypothesis was an almost perfect fit with my own presentation.

It turns out that the testimony of Drs. April Roberts and Povinelli in court, who noted both that I was presenting as if under the influence of an hallucinogen, and in Dr. Povinelli's words

He was very vigilant and fearing that people were conspiring against him, that people were poisoning marijuana that he was smoking, that the conspiracy is against him.

- p. 8 from the transcript of the Release Hearing in Elmira on April 24, 2003.

was invalid in a crucial respect when Dr. Roberts stated she believed no urine samples had been obtained:

Q. Was he willing to give you screens like blood or urine?

A. No.

Q. Was he willing to do that at Cayuga?

A. I didn't see that they --

Q. That was done?

A. -- obtained one, they were able to obtain it.

- p. 34 from the transcript of the same Release Hearing in Elmira on April 24, 2003.

HOWEVER, as you might expect with someone who believes they have been drugged?

They had no problems obtaining a sample from me, because they actually tried to obtain one in a timely fashion?

Unfortunately (for me, as usual!) the record and reports I have obtained recently from hospital and ambulance staff confirm that

1. GC/MS confirm runs for THC and PCP were performed at Centrex Labs (Syracuse), according to my interpretation of my billing statements (based on my history of charges for confirms on RIA positives for THC):

2. BUT the RIA itself was negative for PCP... so no go on proof: the charges for the GC/MS runs are the only hard evidence that might exist that I was "under the influence," as both the lab at the hospital and the clerk at Centrex tell me the records would have been destroyed after seven years. Dr. Baker, the ER physician, has apparently retired and no doubt the lab results he was supposed to be sent destroyed, but he might have some recall of the test results... which were only received after I was transported to Elmira.

2. The records from Trumansburg EMS and Bangs Ambulance taken together along with the ER record from Cayuga Medical Center point clearly to one conclusion: one, and only one person, Alice Richardson, claimed I posed a danger to others. I may be psychotic as fuckall, but I am habitually "polite and cooperative," which is why (for example) the interactions with the folks who provided these records to me recently went quite smoothly. ;-) The Bangs record also describes clearly the several seizures that I suffered while on the way down to Elmira... yeah, it sure looks like PCP to me.

So, whatever. I'll probably forward the emails I had sent to Kevin Field, where I discussed my analysis of my symptoms as characteristic of PCP-induced psychosis prior to discovering that a urine sample was indeed obtained at the CMC, and that there's suggestive evidence that a subthreshold RIA PCP trace was found; having looked over the testimony offered by the State's witnesses, and knowing what my own experience was like (as opposed to the many mischaracterizations that were offered), I just have to wonder,

how could they manage to fuck up absolutely everything in such a marvelous way?

Well, I know perfectly well how: my counterpart Susan Hamann had set me up to cooperate as a partner drafted into the execution of The Plot (i.e., the BDSM business enterprise/con) as The Most Wicked Man in Tompkins County! quite adroitly, and the clinicians obsessed over every chunk of flaming crap she left on their doorstep, including the assertion she had only "officially" lived with me for two months? (It's not like I didn't tell them different, right?)

Ha! - You have now realized that I entered The Twilight Zone... where nothing is as it seems... seventeen years ago, when Susan tried to frame me on rape charges on 12/29/96 in the expectation she could stage-manage my acquittal on grounds of insanity. Her attempt to bring charges against me failed immediately, so The Plot failed... but the OMH clinicians following my deterioration into genuine insanity due to my Prozac/Trazodone->mCPP adverse drug reaction and arson offense just couldn't get their heads around the truth... that

1. I was acquitted of the arson offense, not convicted,
2. I have never raped anyone, and
3. I did not batter my former wife for fourteen years. "Duh."

I have a decent grasp on systems analysis, including management systems, and how institutions go astray, but wow... this fuckup with the urine test is beyond the beyond: incompetence and uncaring at a level even I had never suspected.

thanks...

I feel it's a pretty well-done article, other than the use of "transgender" rather than "transsexual" to describe these folks... the 700,000/300,000,000 or 0.2% figure for prevalence is the dead giveaway: 0.2% (1/500) is Conway and Olyslager's high-end estimate of the prevalence of transexuality.

How Frequently Does Transsexualism Occur? by Lynn Conway†

The term "transgender" blankets a huge population - covering all gender-variant folks from drag queens and crossdressers to the genderqueer to transsexuals - which is probably around 5% of the population? ... no one knows! ... e.g., how can you count closeted heterosexual male cross-dressers? They don't share this information if they value their livelihood, and are typically pretty embarrassed about it anyway!

Thanks, Rich, I appreciate the update on... nothing happening yet? ;-)

I'm feeling fairly optimistic about the DFS approving my release, since otherwise they'll have to contest the judgment of six clinicians? But they might just decide to stall, and not schedule a court case, since nowadays they're asserting that they have the legal authority to seek renewals of Orders of Condition after they have lapsed ... *sigh. I think they're basically correct, in that formal discharge from OMH supervision requires a court hearing... or at least a stipulations to the discharge from the authorities? ???

OTOH, Harry Hugueley (sp?) signed off on the OITS non-objection to my application for a change of name, which is also a nice sign; he seemed like a decent person, and quite well-inclined towards me, the one time I met him at that godawful March 2003 "forensic review" meeting...

Anyway, I'm doing great, and hope you are likewise!

Dear Kevin,

I got the results of my CYP2D6 genotyping test yesterday, and I've been found to be an "Intermediate Metabolizer", so I was correct in hypothesizing that I suffer from a deficiency in metabolizing drugs on P4502D6, and that this placed me at increased risk of an adverse drug reaction to Prozac, Prozac + Trazodone->mCPP, Prozac + Vistaril, and Risperdal. As it states on the Genelex web site <<http://www.healthanddna.com/healthcare-professional/p450-2d6-genotyping.html>>:

- Intermediate Metabolizers

Start IMs at lowest efficacious dose and avoid multiple drug therapy that inhibits or activates through the same pathway.

There are normally two alleles present; one of mine is normal, the other is wholly defective:

Cytochrome P-450 2D6 Mutations Detected

CYP2D6 allele	Variant	Effect on Enzyme Metabolism
*1	None (wild type)	Normal
*4	1846G>A; 100C>Tb	Inactive

Dear Richard and Kevin:

Here's the record of my diagnoses which I assembled from scans and other reports to which I have access. My favorite: "Gender Identity Order"!

Elmira Psychiatric Center Core History, 4/4/03

And note the first entry from the EPC containing the Axis V summary: Current GAF 60, Past GAF 30 ... which will be repeated verbatim all the way through Dr. Khan's Release Request on 9/10/07.

This is what is known in my trade as a WTF!

thank you!

Abstract

Since deleterious effects of m-CPP, the primary catabolic metabolite of trazodone, were last reviewed 2 years ago, research data continue to accrue showing that clinically significant levels of m-CPP (a) are generated in patients using trazodone for sleep and (b) are present 24 h a day and (c) have potentially serious ill effects. This commentary argues that the documented potential for harm and multiple risks of m-CPP outweigh potential benefits of trazodone, given the development and marketing of many safer alternatives since trazodone's introduction in the 1980s.

mCPP: an undesired addition to the ecstasy market.

Bosson M, Brunt T, Van Dijk J, Rigter S, Hoek J, Goldschmidt H, Niesink R.
Drug Information and Monitoring System (DIMS), Trimbos Institute for Mental Health and Addiction, Utrecht, The Netherlands.

Abstract

Abstract A new ecstasy-like substance, meta-chlorophenylpiperazine (mCPP), has been detected in street drugs in the Netherlands. Theoretically, mCPP possesses the potential to become a non-neurotoxic alternative for methylenedioxyamphetamine (MDMA), the regular psychoactive substance of ecstasy. Since its introduction on the Dutch market of synthetic drugs, the percentage of mCPP-containing tablets has increased, including both tablets that contain only mCPP and tablets containing a combination of mCPP and MDMA. These tablets occur in many different colours, shapes and sizes and with various logos, making it impossible to distinguish mCPP-containing tablets from regular MDMA tablets. In addition, the reports of users concerning the effects of mCPP are predominantly negative. All these aspects together lead to the conclusion that mCPP is an undesired addition to the ecstasy market from the user's perspective.

1-(3-Chlorophenyl)piperazine or meta-chlorophenylpiperazine.

A compound sometimes marketed as an ecstasy substitute. Due to being legal in most countries and very easy to obtain, mCPP has found its way into many 'ecstasy' tablets being sold on the black market, particularly in the UK.

The chemical is used in the medical world for testing headache medication, as it is known to induce migraines in 90% of individuals who commonly suffer from them. As such, it is very rarely taken on purpose for recreational use and is only normally taken in error where the user is expecting MDMA (ecstasy).

Effects seem to vary dramatically from one individual to the next, but generally include headaches, gastrointestinal discomfort, tachycardia, dizziness, vomiting, hallucinations and insomnia. Some users claim mCPP produces a similar high to MDMA (ecstasy) - but most consider this high to be overpowered by the negative effects of the drug, making it not worthwhile. Effects normally come on within 30 minutes, beginning with stomach cramps and general discomfort. Many users report the comedown to include a searing headache felt in the front of the face and difficulty sleeping even many hours after ingestion of the substance.

Due to its vast array of effects, mCPP is often mistaken for other substances by those who are inexperienced or unaware of its existence. The rushing and jaw clenching often experienced leads some users to believe the pill they have ingested contains speed \(amphetamine\), while the trippy hallucinogenic side-effects lead others to believe the pill has been adulterated with ketamine or a phenethylamine such as DOB or 2C-B. Genuine adulteration with these psychedelic substances is actually very uncommon, and would produce very different effects in any case.

mCPP cannot be identified by any current pill testing kit, but experienced users can often identify it by means of taste - although it has a similar bitter taste to that of MDMA, it is somewhat tangy and citrus-like.

In recent months, mCPP pills have flooded the ecstasy market in the UK leaving traditional MDxx-based pills increasingly hard to come by and often more expensive.

Rockets, Bombs, Creams, and many more...

Be wary - mCPP is NOT ecstasy!

Dear Richard and Kevin,

Here are scans of the documents in submitted along with my Petition for a Change of Name...

I included Dr. Bezirgianian's letter of 5/31/11 as evidence that this is a rational decision on my part.

And as evidence that I have been using the name "Kevin Eric Saunders a/k/a bonze blayk" on a regular basis since 1992, and thus adopting "Bonze Anne Rose Blayk" as my legally-recognized name does not constitute an effort to deceive others by escaping connections to my social, professional, criminal, and psychiatric history, I submitted the following documents:

An excerpt from Google Groups search results for "saunders blayk comet" - establishing my use of the name "Kevin Eric Saunders a/k/a bonze blayk" in Usenet postings dating back to Sep 25, 1992, including noteworthy announcements of software releases which were sent from my Cornell email account — in my role as Primary Developer of COMET (the Cornell Macintosh Terminal Emulator):

... of course, there's lots more confirmation that these names are linked on the web ;-).
Google ("kevin eric saunders" "bonze blayk") -> About 3,170 results (0.18 seconds) .

And a copy of my letter of 12/10/10 to the Greater Binghamton Health Center's Information Management department notifying them that I had discovered that my a/k/a had been erroneously entered as "BONZE BLAKE" rather than "BONZE BLAYK", and that they should add the name "Anne Rose Blayk" as an a/k/a for me. (I called today and received confirmation from the GBHC Health Information Management department that this has been updated.)

Along with a copy of my Certificate of Non-Responsibility (plausibly correct titling graciously provided by Liz of the Clerk's Office: rather than a "CPL 60.60 - Certificate of Conviction!"), and the sole Judgment against me (which I accepted prior to entering the "Not Reponsible" plea):

thank you!

Subject: re: my "History of extreme violence against women" etc.

Dear Kevin,

Another angle of approach which would be useful in promoting the idea that I should be released from the Order of Conditions is that, in truth, most of the claims made in the "histories" of my "violent behavior" are hyperbolic... at best. A lot of these accusations are derived from Susan Hamann's (bizarre) allegations in her statements appearing in Dr. Kennedy's report of 3/98: for instance, the repeated assertions that I raped Susan, and physically abused my former wife, Anne Marie Whelan, for 14 years. (The phrase I used in the Subject line above was one of the accusations leveled against me in the Treatment Plan which was prepared for me (without my involvement) and presented to me at my first Treatment Planning meeting at EPC in April 2003, which they wanted me to sign without reading. I read it, and refused to sign it.)

Another dubious claim is made in my CMC hospital admission in April 2003: that I was threatening towards myself and Alice Richardson the day before, a claim which Alice denied in a statement she had placed in my progress notes (cited in Dr. Connor's report, which for some reason was not submitted as evidence).

After all, "the best predictor of future violence is past violence"; including false allegations of violence only serves to contaminate the process of prediction.

Please note that I don't intend to share this letter with anyone outside of yourself, Richard Wenig, and others in the MHLS who might be interested: I'm observing the need for circumspection in this matter. I'm now aware that I have a right under HIPAA to request corrections in my medical records... but I know that just because I have that right doesn't mean that it's a good idea to invoke it. First off, somebody might get the impression that I'm on some kind of "manic crusade", and secondly, I have the impression that folks in the OMH are rather touchy about acknowledging that they produce records that are seriously flawed in their factual content.

thanks,
Kevin Eric Saunders a/k/a bonze blayk

scans from Dr. Khan's Release Evaluation of 9-10-07

Almost all of the "Previous violence" Comments here are wrong: only two out of the eight paragraphs contain claims that meet the criteria stated for inclusion. My remarks on these comments appear below the scans, and below those are scans with contrary evidence--Anne Marie's statement under oath, and Dr. Connor's report referring to Alice's attempt to correct the record. (And that's Susan Hamann, not Hammond.)

Historical Items 1-10	Comments
1: Previous violence: Pertains to actual attempts and threats to cause physical harm. Includes sexual assaults. Threats must be unambiguous, not simply statements of hostility. Differentiate by severity of actions	Patient has a history of physical, verbal, and sexual violence towards women, namely his ex-wife, Ms. Annemarie Whelan, and his ex-girlfriend, Ms. Susan Hammond. Mr. Saunders was in a 14-year relationship with Ms. Whelan, and the couple were married for seven of those fourteen years (1988-1995). He was reportedly physically assaultive towards her on several occasions. Mr. Saunders' was in a 3-year relationship with ex-girlfriend Ms. Hammond (1994 - 1997), who alleges that Mr. Saunders physically assaulted and raped her around Christmas in 1996. Ms. Hammond filed for an order of protection against Mr. Saunders, which was in effect at the time of his instant offense, which occurred on February 6, 1997. Mr. Saunders was arrested on 12/29/96 for Criminal Possession of a Weapon, 4th Degree when he was caught in illegal possession of his fathers guns. The instant offense occurred on February 6, 1997 when Mr. Saunders went to the home of Ms. Hammond, clad in women's clothing, while responding to auditory command hallucinations via the radio from Hannibal Lector. He believed that Hannibal Lector was telling him to break into Ms. Hammonds trailer and kidnap her. Mr. Saunders then set the trailer on fire. The trailer home and the vehicle of Ms. Hammond were destroyed. In addition, he was found with kitchen knives that he said he wanted for protection and to use for kidnapping his girlfriend. On April 26, 2002, Mr. Saunders was brought to the emergency room at Cayuga Medical Center, by his housemate, Alice Richardson, after he said he was the reincarnation of Adolf Hitler and that he had a mission. On April 4, 2003 he was re-admitted to Cayuga Medical Center for being agitated, running around his home with no clothes on and making threatening statements to himself and others. He was running his hands under scalding hot water, burning his hands, and scratching himself. Additionally, Mr. Saunders had engaged in a verbal altercation with Ms. Richardson, had become verbally threatening, and she was fearful of him. On April 6, 2003 following his admission to the Elmira Psychiatric Center, he physically assaulted female staff there.

 (... and what does that mean? :-)

2: Young age at first violent incident: Age divisions are admittedly arbitrary. However research has consistently shown that early onset is correlated with future violence. Generally, serious violence prior to age 20 classify as severe .	There were not any indications in the records or any verbal accounts from Mr. Saunders' mother that Mr. Saunders was violent during his childhood. Furthermore, Mr. Saunders had never been adjudicated a person in need of supervision or as a juvenile delinquent.
3: Relationship instability: Item applies to romantic, intimate relationships and excludes family and friends. Instability is manifest by many short term relationships, absence of any relationship or presence of long-term conflicted relationship.	Mr. Saunders was in a relationship with Ms. Whelan for fourteen years, seven of which they were married. He and Ms. Whelan have a daughter as a result of their union. Their current relationship is amicable and Mr. Saunders has joint custody of his daughter who resides with Ms. Whelan. The relationship they had was conflictual during their marriage. It was reported that Mr. Saunders and Ms. Whelan began experimenting sexually at a later stage in their marriage, allowing others to join them in their sexual relationship. It was reported that Mr. Saunders would dress up like a woman and he and Ms. Whelan would bring other men into their bedroom. During one of these encounters, Mr. Saunders reported that he was raped. This "open marriage" seemed to cause stress in their relationship. Mr. Saunders experienced conflictual relationships with women which include his ex-wife and his ex-girlfriend. In both relationships, there have been instances were Mr. Saunders was reported to be physically assaultive and threatening. In the case of Ms. Hammond, his ex-girlfriend, he had been physically and sexually assaultive and had intended to kidnap her. He also had destroyed her trailer home and car by arson.

The truth is that I have never willfully assaulted anybody, physically or sexually (the only possible instance of assault would be on 4/5/03, when I was supposed have assaulted staff at EPC: I have no memory of this). Susan Hamann's claim that I assaulted her and subjected her to sexual intercourse without her consent on January 29, 1996 is false, and has no evidentiary support; a charge of "Harassment in the second degree" (NY Penal Code Section 240.26) was filed in this case and later dropped. Susan claimed I begged her to come over for Christmas, after she had not seen me since she moved out in August, and then forced sex on her; the truth is that she volunteered to come over for Christmas, we engaged in sexual intercourse many times during her visit that Christmas, when she slept with me for five nights, that over the previous six months we had met in public several times, and moreover she had come over to my house and slept with me on about six nights (one time for three nights straight). Susan Hamann's statements, as quoted in Dr. Kennedy's report of March 19, 1998 on pp. 7-9, and in many reports thereafter, contain some ludicrous falsehoods.

S 120.00 Assault in the third degree.
 A person is guilty of assault in the third degree when:
 1. With intent to cause physical injury to another person, he causes such injury to such person or to a third person; or
 2. He recklessly causes physical injury to another person; or
 3. With criminal negligence, he causes physical injury to another person by means of a deadly weapon or a dangerous instrument.
 Assault in the third degree is a class A misdemeanor.

Peaceable ownership of firearms in the home is not violent. I was not "caught" with two unregistered handguns on January 29, 1996; I surrendered them voluntarily to the Sheriff's deputies after Susan Hamann called the Sheriff's department to file a complaint, and the deputies asked me to turn over any firearms in my possession.

Before and during my hospitalization on April 27th, 2002, I committed no acts of violence, and made no threats. I made statements after I went to the hospital ER on April 26, 2002, to the effect that I believed that I might be the reincarnation of Hitler when the physician asked "Do you have any unusual thoughts?" I returned home with the recommendation that if I lost another night's sleep, I should return to the hospital. I did so the next day, was promptly swept into the BSU, and at that time stated that I was on a mission. I believed that I was in truth a kind of ANTI-Hitler, whatever evils might be connected with the historical Hitler, and the mission was to go to the hospital, though I didn't say that at the time. There were no assaults or threats made.

I did not hear any command hallucinations other than "bonze blayk, keep dancing!" and "Put on the clothes that were left for you" in the morning preceding the arson. My "confession", taken on February 6, 1997, which includes the false statement that "I believed that I was hearing messages through the radio telling me to kidnap Susan", was mangled by the trooper who took my statements and altered them; when I attempted to correct the false statements he had introduced, he urged me to "hurry up, we haven't got all night". Believing myself to be in the middle of an enormously scary plot involving preventing a release of anthrax by volunteering myself as a sacrifice, I did as he asked.

(Regarding my "confession" and the false claim that I was "responding to auditory command hallucinations" at the time of the arson which appears in most of the psychiatric reports: Note that I stated clearly at the time I made my verbal statement after my arrest that "I was hearing voices over the radio, and I thought that I was supposed to quote kidnap endquote Susan". I succeeded in adding those quotation marks around a later occurrence of the word "kidnap" in one occurrence of the word in my "statement": this was a play-act intended to deceive "Hannibal Lecter". Moreover, Susan Hamann was not "my estranged girlfriend" as stated in my "confession": she had visited me at my home (with David Fogel) eight days before the arson out of concern for my health, a fact which I have never previously stated. Here's a plausibility check regarding this "confession": where, outside of legal/police circles and TV shows, would anyone employ the phrase "my estranged girlfriend"? The truth is that Susan has never said to me that our relationship is over. In fact, to my amazement, she continued to express an interest in a romantic relationship with me even after the arson in a number of phone calls she made to me from after the Order of Protection expired in June 1997 up until January 1998.)

Prior to asking Alice to call an ambulance to take me to the hospital on April 4, 2003 in order to commit myself voluntarily, I did not make threatening statements toward anyone, and there was no "verbal altercation" with Alice Richardson; see page 2 of Dr. Connor's report below for a reference to the statement she had entered in my progress notes on April 11, 2003.

My relationship with Anne Marie Whelan was not a "long-term conflicted relationship". After 12 years of living together continuously in a reasonably harmonious relationship, our relationship became highly conflictual starting in October 1992, when Anne Marie decreed that we were going to have an "open marriage". Within two weeks (with encouragement from Anne Marie) I'd found a girlfriend... who was interested in joining our marriage! Anne Marie shortly thereafter managed to arrange and stage manage a catastrophe on February 14, 1993, by encouraging her new (dangerous, and grossly unsafe) boyfriend to molest me--she was present--which led directly to our separation in June and divorce the following year.

Here is Dr. Connor's report; Alice's statement appears on p.2. I've included the whole thing, since it's brief and kind of interesting. One thing to note is that Dr. Connor rebuts Dr. Robert's assertions which represent me on 4/19/03 as if I were still psychotic and misbehaving, when I had recovered on the 6th and thereafter my behavior was very good thereafter (even after I was assaulted by William Sherman).

PSYCHOLOGICAL EVALUATION

Client: Name: Kevin Saunders Birthdate: May 1, 1956
Education: College Grad + Occupation: Computer Programmer
Marital Status: Divorced, one child
Attorney: Richard Wenig Age and Sex: 47 Male

Evaluation Date: May 8, 2003

Purpose of Evaluation: Richard Wenig of the NYS Mental Hygiene Legal Services requested an independent evaluation of Kevin Saunders (a.k.a. Bonze Blayk), an involuntary patient of Elmira Psychiatric Center. Mr. Saunders is being evaluated with respect to treatment over objection and possible transfer to the Rochester Psychiatric Center Forensic Unit. Mr. Wenig and Mr. Saunders were informed that the evaluation might or might not be of use to them in a retention hearing, and they requested that I proceed with that understanding.

Assessment Procedures: Clinical Interview
Review of Saunders Medical Records
Review of Saunders "Selections from a Literature Search on the Effects, Mechanism of Action, and Metabolism of mCPP, the Principal Metabolite of Trazedone, with References (5/22/2000)
Review of Saunders "Literature Search on Side Effects, Drug-Drug Interaction, and Metabolic Deficiencies in CYP2D6 Activity Relating to Fluoxetine, Norfluoxetine, Trazedone, and mCPP, with References" (5/24/2000)
Review of 6 page "To Whom It May Concern" letter by Kevin Saunders (6/2/2000)

Appearance, Mannerisms and Behavior: Kevin E. Saunders is a heavyset 47 year old white male with long black hair which is beginning to turn grey, and glasses. He wore a long-sleeved dress shirt, worn black jeans, and casual shoes. His grooming and general appearance were slightly unkempt. He maintained eye contact throughout the 2 hour interview, and was consistently smiling and friendly. Mr. Saunders provided a rambling account of events, diagnoses and treatment he has received, and his attitudes and opinions. When asked structuring questions, he was able to provide relevant and coherent responses. At no time during the 2 hour interview did he manifest any threatening or aggressive verbal behavior. He was oriented with respect to person, place, and time. There were no indications of hallucinations during the interview. He admitted to being delusional at times in the past; it was difficult to determine if he was continuing to express delusional material from those episodes.

Summary of Record Review:

Mr. Wenig provided the application for an order authorizing involuntary treatment of Kevin Saunders, affidavits in support of the application by Dr. Carlos delos-Reyes and Dr. April Roberts, the current Quarterly CPL 330.20 Monitoring Report dated March 28, 2003, Clinical Summary by Dr. Roberts dated 4/9/03, Elmira Psychiatric Admission and Progress Notes 4/4/03 to 4/23/03, Screening/Admission Note and Psychiatric Evaluation by Dr. Roberts dated 4/7/03, Initial Psychological Assessment and Mental Status Examination by Dr. Povinelli dated 4/8/03, Core History by Meghan Lawrence, SWI dated 4/9/03, Discharge Summary from the Cayuga Medical Center at Ithaca by Dr. Roemmelt dated 5/3/02.

Mr. Saunders' record establishes, and he does not dispute, that he was admitted to Elmira Psychiatric Center of 4/4/03 at a time when he was agitated, doing bizarre things, and delusional (e.g. claiming to be Hitler). The affidavits state that he was threatening to others, but Mr. Saunders maintained, and it is supported in the progress notes, that his housemate, Alice Richardson contacted staff to state that although he was agitated and upset, he was not threatening to anyone (4/11/03 progress note, signature illegible). Both prior to his admission to Elmira Psychiatric Center and after, he refused to take prescribed medications or to provide results of drug tests. The affidavits assert that Mr. Saunders is dangerous to others, citing the 1997 arson and "a history of rape and assaultive behavior in the past and recently at the hospital he tried to assault the staff." He is also considered dangerous to self citing self-abusive behavior and abuse of alcohol and drugs. Although the affidavits appear to imply that Mr. Saunders was aggressive and assaultive throughout his stay, the progress notes report problems the first two days, during which Mr. Saunders was placed in restraint, and after that "He has only the one incident of being aggressive and assaultive that I know of. Has always been pleasant and friendly to me and has done what was asked of him." (Judy Natebaert, TA, Weekly SOAR note). He did continue to refuse to take the medication prescribed for him, and to tell staff who attempted to "teach" him that he considered the medication harmful to him. All of the inappropriate and aggressive behavior reported in the affidavits occurred during the first 3 days of his admission to Elmira Psychiatric Center. I found no reports of Mr. Saunders undressing or being naked, following other patients, requiring restraint, or being assaultive after 4/7/03; to the contrary, the common phrase regarding Mr. Saunders was "pleasant and cooperative" by a variety of staff.

attended his monthly appointments with his Personal Service Coordinator/Therapist (PSC), and was cooperative and pleasant, with no reports of violent acting out behaviors. The Forensic Committee recommended transfer of the case back to the Tompkins County Mental Health Clinic for followup. Mr. Saunders continued to refuse medication and urine drug screen, and to admit to regular marijuana use. Mr. Saunders was considered appropriate for community placement and not dangerous to himself or others at that time (March 28, 2003).

In the Psychological Assessment by Dr. Pavinelli, it was reported that Mr. Saunders was found to be of Superior Intelligence in 1997 (Wechsler Adult Intelligence Scale Full Scale IQ of 127). Also, "He has periods of hypersexuality, sexual ambivalence and he is a devout cross dresser....He has a very high sense of self worth despite being seen by others around him as being egotistical, inconsiderate and arrogant. The patient had very clearly presented with sexual identification problems. He tends to cross dress and sees no real problems with wearing female clothing." Dr. Pavinelli diagnosed him Bipolar disorder with psychotic features exacerbated by alcohol and cannabis abuse.

A year before the current episode, Mr. Saunders suffered a brief psychotic episode and took himself to the Cayuga Medical Center. The Discharge Summary by Dr. Roemmelt of the Cayuga Medical Center at Ithaca reported that he came in an acutely psychotic state. He was given 2 doses of Haldol and his thinking cleared dramatically, perhaps too quickly to be a drug effect rather than placebo. He was discharged on no medication and given an appointment at the clinic where he had been seen for several years. Dr. Roemmelt pointed out to Mr. Saunders that there was no chemical involved this time or apparent explanation other than a sore throat and elevated white count (which would not precipitate an event in an ordinary person), that Mr. Saunders has "an underlying predisposition to deterioration into psychosis."

Patient Perspective:

Kevin Saunders provided his perspective on the key events in his life, diagnosis and treatment in a 2 hour clinical interview, and 2 literature searches and a "To Whom It May Concern" letter in May/June of 2000. In January of 1997, Mr. Saunders was experiencing neurological symptoms, including numbness, paresthesias, balance difficulties, and vision disturbances. He was also experiencing psychiatric symptoms including confusion, delusions, paranoia, and hallucinations. He believed in 1997 that these were symptoms of a neurological or autoimmune disease.

In May of 2000, however, on the basis of reviewing the literature on the 2

medications he was taking in January, 1997, Trazedone (for sleep) and Prozac, he concluded that he was suffering from an adverse drug reaction. The primary metabolite of Trazedone is mCPP, an anxiogenic agent which can produce depersonalization and hallucinations. Excretion of mCPP was prolonged by urinary retention, constipation, and hypophagia caused by Fluoxetine (Prozac). Mr. Saunders concluded that his neurological and psychiatric symptoms in January and February of 1997 were best accounted for by this adverse drug reaction.

Mr. Saunders considers himself a "transgendered lesbian," a woman in a man's body who is sexually attracted to women. He identified with women from a young age, was uncomfortable with "male dominance games," and "the male attitude toward sex." Mr. Saunders cried easily and was expressive emotionally. When he moved into a dorm at the University of Texas, he experienced his first male bonding experience, and felt that his dormmates were tolerant of his being different. He believes that he is beautiful as a woman, and could pass as a woman with hair removal, makeup, and woman's clothing. He has never affiliated with any transgender or transvestite group, and was offended when Dr. Belsare suggested a transvestite program in Pennsylvania; the brochure for the program had a picture of a man in a dress on a tractor which is obviously an inappropriate place to wear a dress. Mr. Saunders was deeply attached to his wife, and persuaded her to go out together socially on occasion as 2 women; she was not comfortable with such activity, however, and his gender identity disorder was a major factor in their divorce. They have remained friends, and prior to his hospitalization, Mr. Saunders cared for their daughter several days a week. When he committed the arson in 1997, he was dressed in an evening gown and high heeled shoes.

Mr. Saunders began smoking marijuana as a college student at the University of Texas, and believes that it helps him focus in his work. He has gone periods of up to 2 years without marijuana, smokes only a small amount each day when he is using it, and experiences no withdrawal symptoms when he does not use it.

After finishing college, Mr. Saunders came to Ithaca for graduate school in Economics at Cornell. However, he did not find the courses interesting, and became a computer programmer for the university from 1986 to 1994. He developed the Cornell Macintosh Emulation Terminals software (COMET), which is still used at Cornell. In 1994, he worked for 9 months for Millennium, a Rochester firm, negotiated an agreement with Cornell allowing him to market COMET, and started his own business. Last year he grossed $25,000 in his business, which he operates out of his home.

Mr. Saunders was extremely critical of the reports by Dr. Singh and Dr. Kennedy of the Rochester Forensic Services, and of his treatment by the Office of Mental Health. He did have a good relationship for 4 years with Linda Riley (6/98 to 4/02), who was Forensic Coordinator for Tompkins County and his therapist especially for gender identity issues. He stopped providing drug screen test reports because they cost him $45 each, and he didn't think it was fair that he had to pay for them. Mr. Saunders felt that the Elmira Forensic Coordinator tried to "threaten me into conformity" and he was transferred from Linda Riley and Tompkins County to Elmira Psychiatric Center Outpatient Services in March, 2002. Mr. Saunders acknowledged that he was delusional on admission to Elmira Psychiatric Center on May 4, 2003, but he felt he was ready to leave on May 8, 2003.

Diagnosis:

Axis I	302.85	Gender Identity Disorder, sexually attracted to females.
	298.8	Brief Psychotic Disorder without marked stressor, in remission.
Axis II	301.9	Personality Disorder NOS with borderline and narcissistic features
Axis III		Transient hypertension
Axis IV		Track 3 CPL 330.20 legal status, divorced
Axis V		Current GAF 55 circumstantial speech and moderate difficulty in social and occupational functioning Highest GAF in past year 55

Conclusions:

1. With respect to diagnosis, the primary (active) psychiatric diagnosis is Gender Identity Disorder, a diagnosis agreed to by the patient and a variety of staff who have evaluated Mr. Saunders, including his treating psychiatrist, Dr. Roberts.
2. A secondary diagnosis, which appears to be most consistent with the three psychotic episodes described in the medical record and by Mr. Saunders (2/97, 4/02, 5/03) is Brief Psychotic Disorder, currently in remission. Mr. Saunders concluded in May of 2000 that the first episode was an adverse drug reaction, but the episodes of 4/02 and 5/03 are not consistent with that conclusion. There is support for Dr. Povinelli's diagnosis of Bipolar Disorder in the medical record, but Mr. Saunders rejected that diagnosis. Dr. Roberts, his treating psychiatrist, diagnosed him Psychotic Disorder NOS.
3. From review of the medical record and Mr. Saunders' report, it was concluded that although Mr. Saunders admits to use of alcohol and cannabis on a regular basis, the criteria of clinically significant distress or impairment for diagnosis of abuse or dependence were not met; Mr. Saunders believes the cannabis helps him in his work, and reported no distress associated with either cannabis or alcohol. The medical record does not document clinically significant impairment associated with either alcohol or cannabis. Therefore no diagnosis of substance abuse or dependence was made.

4. Mr. Saunders is not psychotic or dangerous to himself or to others at this time. The medical record and Mr. Saunders' report are consistent that he was psychotic for a few days to two weeks in January-February of 1997, the end of April, 2002, and the beginning of May, 2003. The medical record, Mr. Saunders' report, and my observation during the 2 hour interview with him on May 8, 2003 are consistent that his behavior when he is not in a brief psychotic episode is not aggressive or self-destructive, bizarre, delusional, or hallucinatory. The most recent outpatient quarterly CPL 330.20 monitoring report prepared at the end of March, 2003 reported that Mr. Saunders was suitable for community placement and not dangerous to himself or others. There have been no reports of violent behavior since 1997 when the arson occurred.

Recommendations:

1. It is recommended that Mr. Saunders be discharged from Elmira Psychiatric Center and referred to Linda Riley of the Tompkins County Mental Health Center for outpatient treatment. His psychotic episode is considered to be in remission. It is recommended that Mr. Saunders be monitored, weekly initially and eventually monthly for signs of decompensation. If there are particular stresses on Mr. Saunders, the monitoring should be close (weekly).
2. It is recommended that Gender Identity Disorder be considered the primary psychiatric disorder, and that treatment specific to that condition be provided. Also, it is recommended that Mr. Saunders be strongly encouraged to explore affiliation with individuals and/or groups in the transvestite/transgender community. Such affiliation would be expected to provide him with a sense of community and belonging.

Subject: re: Ms. Faber's letter of 10/7/01
Date: November 14, 2001 10:28:08 AM EST
To: Richard Wenig <RWENIG@courts.state.ny.us>

Dear Mr. Wenig;

This email note regards Ms. Doreen Faber's letter dated 10/7/01 in which she alleges that I am not complying with my Order of Conditions.

According to my understanding, she makes several false claims of fact, and misconstrues both the purpose of Orders of Conditions in general and the specific provisions of the Order in my case.

First, Ms. Faber claims "Ms. Riley informed me that she had recommended a urine drug screen be done to monitor abstinence from illicit drugs and/or alcohol...". In fact, when I met with Ms. Riley on 9/18/01, she told me that she has been arguing with Ms. Faber and others at the Elmira facility for over a year that she sees no need for me to continue in therapy, and no justification for requiring me to submit urine samples. Ms. Riley indicated that she was told by others on my "treatment team" that urine samples are mandatory, and ordered her to perform the test.

Ms. Riley has been my therapist for over three years, and is the second mental health professional to tell me recently that further treatment will not be fruitful in my case; Dr. Leifer told me he would give me a formal "no diagnosis" sometime in May 2000. Ms. Riley said she sees no need to meet with me; Ms. Faber insisted (in our joint meeting 10/30/01) that I must see Ms. Riley on a regular basis, and when Ms. Riley suggested once every six weeks, Ms. Faber demanded that she see me every four weeks. Since the order clearly requires that I "attend an outpatient mental health treatment program," I intend to comply, even though no therapeutic purpose is served by this time and expense, which is wasted not only for me, but for Ms. Riley and the other clients she serves.

Ms. Faber misrepresents the facts when she claims that I am not complying with the treatment recommendations of the Tompkins County Mental Health Clinic (TCMH). According to what I was told by Ms. Riley, the orders in question come from OMH personnel, not TCMH. I believe they are based on a misconstruction of the requirements of the Order of Conditions.

Parenthetically, my cost for urine specimen drug screens since 1998 amounts to more than $692.36, a significant economic burden (I'm going to request a statement from Cayuga Medical Center to confirm the actual total, since I am apparently missing one or more invoices). Of ten screens, seven were negative for THC metabolites, two were positive, and one result was unclear (as I've already noted, in the RRFU reports, Dr. Singh reported a positive, and Dr. Kennedy a negative result for the same test!). Each screen costs about $70, with an additional charge if the initial test registers positive and a GC/MS confirmation test is performed.

Second, note that Ms. Faber is quoting from a form which differs from the actual Order of Conditions, which incorporated a similar form submitted by the OMH when the court requested a treatment plan.

The actual Order of Conditions states:

"ORDERED that the above-named defendant attend an outpatient mental health treatment program... Said treatment may include but is not limited to the following:"

...

g) Refraining from indulging in the use of any unauthorized drugs and from indulging in the consumption of alcoholic beverages

h) Submitting specimens for laboratory/sobriety screenings administered for the purpose of detecting the presence of unauthorized or illicit drugs or alcohol as directed by a physician;

Ms. Faber states:

"As you are aware, your legal status and present Order of Conditions stipulate the following:

(G) Refraining from indulging in the use of any unauthorized drugs and from indulging in the consumption of alcohol beverages.

(H) Submitting specimens for laboratory/sobriety screenings administered for the purpose of detecting the presence of unauthorized use of illicit drugs or alcohol as directed by a physician."

These are markedly different, since the actual Order makes a distinction between "unauthorized" and "illicit" drugs, and does not explicitly forbid the use of "illicit" drugs!

(Note how poorly phrased the language is in the OMH form which is incorporated into the Order: "treatment may include... f) Keeping the Commissioner and the District Attorney apprised of his current address". In what sense is this requirement "treatment"? This is a reasonable requirement, but it is certainly not "treatment"!)

Moreover, Ms. Faber relies on a bizarre interpretation of the word "may" to interpret the laundry list of possible treatments in this section as absolute requirements: "'May' means 'must'." I am not, as Ms. Faber claims in her letter, "aware" that the Order requires all of these possible "treatments."

Black's Law dictionary defines "may" as:

An auxiliary verb qualifying the meaning of another verb by expressing ability, competency, liberty, permission, possibility, probability or contingency. U.S. v. Lexington Mill & E. Co. 232 U.S. 399, 34 S.Ct. 337, 340, 58 L.Ed. 658.

However, as a general rule, the word "may" will not be treated as a word of command unless there is something in context or subject matter of act to indicate that it was used in such sense. Bloom v. Texas State Bd. of Examiners of Psychologists, Tex. Civ. App. 475 S.w.2d 314, 377. In construction of statutes and presumably also in construction of federal rules word "may" as opposed to "shall" is indicative of discretion or choice between two or more alternatives, but context in which word appears must be controlling factor. U.S. v. Cook, C.A.Ill., 432 F.2d 1093, 1098.

Prior to the time the Order was made, I repeatedly requested clarification of the ambiguous language in this section; no one at that time informed me that anyone would interpret "may" as "must," including Smith Paulison of the Elmira Psychiatric Center, who I believe was the person who transmitted the form to the Court. Nor did Ms. Riley interpret "may" as "must," prior to Ms. Faber's appearance on the scene in 1999, and her assertion that this was the only possible interpretation of the Order.

This bizarre interpretation of "may" apparently facilitates other egregious interpretations, for example, Ms. Faber's claim that I have no right to refuse medication, and the claim that the OMH is required under this Order to review and possibly forbid interstate travel.

Note moreover that this form was sent to the court instead of a formal treatment plan; the court never received a written service plan as specified in Section 29.15 of the Mental Hygiene Law; to my knowledge such a treatment plan has never been prepared in my case. 14 NYCRR 587.16 "Treatment Planning for Clinic Treatment Programs" further describes the nature of a treatment plan, which is required for all outpatients. According to my understanding of the law, this (non-existent) service plan is the being referenced in the first condition of the Order: "ORDERED that the above-named defendant comply with each term and condition of the treatment plan prescribed for the said defendant by the State Office of Mental Health...". (My research indicates that constitutional law would seem to prohibit the Court from endowing the OMH with the power to formulate and enforce "ad hoc" compulsory treatment plans which are not incorporated in the Order.)

Finally, Ms. Faber states "Although it was my observation, you have [sic] a tendency during our meeting to focus on the circumstances and failures within the 'system' that led to your present legal status. My suggestion is that your present situation be a priority for you at this time."

I do indeed tend to focus on the cause of the psychosis I suffered, a horrifying experience I firmly intend to avoid repeating. How else would one try to prevent a recurrence, if not by understanding the cause? Seeking an accurate diagnosis of the only psychotic episode I have ever experienced is being rejected as an unreasonable concern!

This is her sole acknowledgment of my claim, once again repeated in the meeting, that my psychosis was caused by legally prescribed medications; she attempted to dismiss me with the statement "Oh, you're talking about Prozac again."

Over 17 months have elapsed since I figured out that the interaction of Prozac, Trazodone, and its byproduct mCPP almost certainly caused the physical and mental illnesses I suffered during January and February 1997, and informed the OMH via Ms. Faber and Ms. Riley that I had discovered new information providing a clear explanation of the cause of the psychosis I suffered on 2/6/97. This would logically entail a review of my diagnosis.

Since that time no appointments have been scheduled for me with a psychiatrist, and according to Ms. Riley, the OMH will probably never make any form of response to the concerns I expressed in my letter: false allegations of criminal behavior will stand uncontested in their records, along with an ideologically-driven Cannabis Dependence diagnosis contradicted by the facts of my life; and the absolutely incontestable claim that I was unknowingly exposed to a panicogenic hallucinogen, mCPP, prior to becoming psychotic, may never be acknowledged.

I believe that I am not receiving competent medical care from the OMH. If psychiatry is a medical science, findings of psychiatrists must be based on facts, not on misquotations and unsourced hostile gossip (the claim that I pose a "threat" to my former wife, AnneMarie Whelan, particularly irks me, since she doesn't agree, and the claim I battered her for fourteen years is an outrageous insult to both of us; other equally unfounded claims abound in my "clinical records"). The same goes for therapy and social work in general. If findings aren't based on fact, the making of "psychiatric diagnoses" serves only to lend a pseudo-scientific sheen to speculation. As we in the computer programming profession say: "Garbage In, Garbage Out"--the most perfect information processing system is useless if it is fed inaccurate data.

In my view, no rational individual would uncomplainingly accept the "health care" or "treatment" I have been "provided" by the OMH; there has been very little responsiveness at the OMH level to my individual concerns, and the interpretations of the Order made by Ms. Faber are punitive in character rather than therapeutic.

Thanks for your time and attention; I'll be happy to discuss with you any of the points I make here if you are interested.

Sincerely,
Kevin Eric Saunders

From Chapter 6 of Through the Looking Glass by Lewis Carroll

'When I use a word,' Humpty Dumpty said in rather a scornful tone, 'it means just what I choose it to mean--neither more nor less.'

'The question is,' said Alice, 'whether you CAN make words mean so many different things.'

'The question is,' said Humpty Dumpty, 'which is to be master--that's all.'

Alice was too much puzzled to say anything, so after a minute Humpty Dumpty began again. 'They've a temper, some of them--particularly verbs, they're the proudest--adjectives you can do anything with, but not verbs--however, I can manage the whole lot of them! Impenetrability! That's what I say!'

'Would you tell me, please,' said Alice 'what that means?'

'Now you talk like a reasonable child,' said Humpty Dumpty, looking very much pleased. 'I meant by "impenetrability" that we've had enough of that subject, and it would be just as well if you'd mention what you mean to do next, as I suppose you don't mean to stop here all the rest of your life.'

PPS: Amusingly, it appears that "may" always means "must" ... in India!

COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA JOINT STANDING COMMITTEE on FOREIGN AFFAIRS, DEFENCE AND TRADE (Trade Subcommittee) Reference: Australia's trade relationship with India ADELAIDE, Wednesday, 8 October 1997 OFFICIAL HANSARD REPORT CANBERRA

p. 15:

Mr PRICE (Deputy Chair) In terms of the competitors, you said that they had one advantage of deep pockets. Are there any other advantages that they have over you in doing business?

Mr Attwood (Witness) I think more disadvantages than advantages. The Germans and some others -apart from the British and the Americans -do not come with the advantages that we have with the language. I would point out that there are aspects of Indian English that should be well understood by anybody who is going to do business in India. For instance, and I will just give the one instance, the word 'may' in our context around this table would mean 'conditional' - something we would perhaps like to do, or if we can possibly get around to it, we will do it; it has that sort of connotation. In India the word 'may' means 'must'. So, in India, if somebody comes to you with a contract which says, 'You may do this work by 3 June next year,' we might think that they would like us to do it by that time. But what they mean is that that is non-negotiable, that that is absolutely critical. That is an example of the way that Indian English has deviated from Australian English or anybody else's English. And you must know that- you 'may' know that. I fell foul of that five years ago, and I will never forget that lesson.
